ROVER'S OFFICE TO BE INCLUDED IN POLICE PROBE

Alleged Refusal to Issue Warrants in "Beatings" Brings Inquiry.

STOLL AND HUNT ASK RECORD'S EXPUNGING

Grand Jury to Get Evidence Today Against at Least 25 Policemen.

The investigations of the "third degree" police practice and the alleged "framing" of former Patrolman Orville Staples were deflected from their regular courses by a series of developments yesterday and last night which now have the "third degree" inquiry broadening to include the District Attorney's office and the Staples case shifting from civilian inquiry into the courts.

The developments are:

1. Department of Justice officials in a letter to Frank G. Campbell, of Virginia Highlands, announced that their inquiry will include alleged malfeasance in the District Attorney's office with respect to alleged refusals of that office to issue warrants against policemen on application of beaten prisoners.

2. Attorneys for Inspector Louis J. Stoll and Patrolman Joseph H. Hunt, the first indirectly and the second directly, accused of "framing" Staples, filed motions yesterday to have the grand jury's report expunged from the records.

Brookhart Writes Letter.

3. Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, in a letter directed to the District Commissioners yesterday, demanded to know why the Commissioners have failed to suspend Patrolman Hunt on the basis of the grand jury's report.

4. At 10:30 this morning the grand jury will hear accusations of third degree treatment against at least 25 policemen in various precincts.

In a letter to the Department of Justice, Mr. Campbell called attention to reports published in the early stages of the inquiry in which it was alleged that beaten prisoners had been denied assault warrants against the policemen. In reply the Department of Justice advised him that its inquiry would also include those allegations against the District attorney's office.

Senator Brookhart would not discuss his letter to the Commissioners other than admit that he was "interested" in the case and that he had asked to know why Patrolman Hunt had not been relieved of his badge in view of the grand jury's report.

Court Fight Begun.

In what counsel declared a test suit to settle "once and for all" the powers of a District grand jury, Policeman Hunt and Inspector Stoll petitioned the District Supreme Court to expunge from its records the grand jury's special report charging "perjured testimony" was used to oust Policeman Orville Staples from the police force.

Arguments on the motions to expunge the jury's report will likely be heard next week.

Through Attorney Albert W. Jacobson, Hunt, whose dismissal was asked by the grand jury for alleged securing "false affidavits" and "giving false testimony," declared the jury went beyond its authority and followed "extra-judicial" procedure in making the report.

Inspector Stoll was referred to in the report indirectly in the statement "that all the members of the Metropolitan Police Department who were connected with the gathering of evidence," were culpable.

Declares Charges False.

He declared that the charges contained in the report "are absolutely false and without foundation" so far as he is concerned, and Hunt, in his petition, made an identical assertion.

Both declared that if a hearing were held on the charges "it would be quickly and conclusively shown that there was no justification for them."

"To permit such a report to remain among the records of this

Life-Termer Balks Prison-Escape Plot

Warden Says That Scheme Would Have Cost 25 Lives at Kansas Penitentiary.

Lansing, Kans., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A life-term convict was credited today with frustrating an escape plot at the Kansas Penitentiary here which Warden Kirk Prather said would have cost at least 25 lives had it been carried out.

As a reward for disclosing the hiding place of firearms which nine convicts had planned to use early today in a desperate bid for freedom, the life termer was granted a temporary parole by Gov. Harry Woodring, on recommendation of the warden.

The name of the informer was withheld in the fear an attempt might be made upon his life.

The prisoners involved, all classed as desperate characters and serving sentences of life or the equivalent, were placed in solitary confinement. Prather said they will remain there as long as he is warden, and he hoped they would do "solitary" the rest of their lives.

DISEASE AND RIOTS FOLLOW HURRICANE

Belize Threatened by Water and Food Shortages; U. S. Consul Dies.

(Associated Press.)

Additional accounts of death and destruction caused by storms in Central America during the last few days filtered in last night over crippled communication lines.

Belize, British Honduras, struggled against the threat of food and water shortage and an outbreak of disease and riots by stricken natives after its devastating hurricane.

An Atlanta, Ga., amateur radio operator, picked up a message from Belize in which the dead were estimated at 2,500. Other estimates were much lower, however, running from 500 to 1,000.

A message to Boston said that Giles Russell Taggart, American Consul at Belize, died at Tela, Honduras, from pneumonia caused by exposure in the Belize hurricane.

Skeleton reports from Santa Rosalia, lower California, hit by a hurricane Saturday and Sunday, told of suffering from food shortage.

La Paz, Lower California, was in less serious condition, although storm destruction was heavy.

Mazatlan, Mexico, dispatches told of the loss of several small boats in the Gulf of California, the number of victims being uncertain.

Mexico City, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The situation at Santa Rosalia, Lower California, which was hit by a hurricane Saturday and Sunday, was said today to be growing serious because of food shortage, in meager reports received here.

At La Paz, which was also struck by the storm, a less serious condition was said to prevail, although the storm wrought considerable destruction.

A wireless operator at Santa Rosalia said the whole town of 2,000 people was submerged by a flood during the hurricane and there were a number of victims. No one was reported killed at La Paz.

The barometer was falling again at Mazatlan. The Tacubaya Observatory

HOOVER DRAWS PLAN TO SPEED HOME BUILDING

Program Seen as Aid to Early Recovery by Business.

CONFERFENCE TO SEEK PERMANENT SCHEME

Better Buying Terms Sought to Encourage Activity by Individuals.

(United Press.)

A new Hoover plan of heroic proportions, designed at once to aid in overcoming business depression and add to the permanent well being of the Nation by stimulating home building and home owning, was announced by the President yesterday.

The plan is to work out, on solid lines, means by which families may be encouraged to buy their own homes and by which better buying terms, as regards credits, may be provided, so that home buying will be easier and safer.

To this end, 1,000 delegates, the President announced, will meet here December 2, 3, 4 and 5 to discuss the results of more than one year of study by 31 committees.

The conference will be called "The President's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership."

Seeks Permanent Policy.

Explaining his motive in appointing the committees and laying the groundwork for the December conference, the President said:

"It is unnecessary to point out the beneficial effect which a well-considered Nation-wide program directed to the extension of home building and home ownership in the immediate future would have upon our current unemployment and economic situation.

"The forthcoming conference, however, was initiated to deal with the question under a long range plan.

"It will be doubly fortunate if it should result not only in a sounder permanent policy, but in some degree of relief of current unemployment and in stimulation of the industries upon which building depends."

Financing, the President said, must be a prime factor in the home building program.

Credit Basis Unsatisfactory.

"The present depression," he said, "has given emphasis to the fact that the credit system in home building is not as satisfactorily organized as other branches of credit . . . in the period of expansion preceding the current depression rates for second mortgages, including commissions, discounts and other charges, rose in many cities to the equivalent of 20 or 25 per cent per annum. This not only stifled home ownership, but led to the loss of many homes through foreclosure. The present depression has been marked by unemployment in the trades involved."

Aside from its inherent possibilities, the President's new plan roused

Mahatma Gandhi

Philosophy of Great Indian Leader Shown Based on Age-Long Spiritual Traditions Animated by Intense Modernity.

By SYUD HOSSAIN.

(Second of a series of three articles by an intimate associate of the amazing Indian leader during the years of his struggle to weld the consciousness of India's teeming millions.)

What is the background of Gandhi's remarkable career, and what are the incidents and developments that have given him his amazing philosophy of life?

I referred at the outset to the racial and religious inheritance of Gandhi. That constitutes a bedrock foundation for the upbuilding of his character and personality which must never be lost sight of. I myself subscribe to the view that only India could ever have produced Gandhi, not in any stupid sense of national egotism or racial exclusiveness, but as the expression or reincarnation of an immemorial racial genius. Gandhi is not an isolated or unrelated phenomenon. He is the latest manifestation and embodiment of that spiritual principle or impulse that gave to mankind its earliest recorded or extant scriptures, that marks the first formulation in hman annuals, antedating both Judaism and Zoroastrianism, of the concepts of organized religion and systematic philosophy.

Gandhi comes in the line of true succession to Buddha and to Mahavira, the founder of Jainism, and contemporary of Buddha—but less well known to the Western World—and to a host of other prophets and teachers and seers produced by India in the last 2,500 years, who have held, with whatever variations of emphasis or detail, the same ultimate and absolute principles of human conduct as the prelude and determinant of individual human destiny.

It is important, however, to realize that Gandhi is not exclusively the product of his race or clime. In his ideals he represents the spiritual traditions of the age-long past, but in his technique he is the personification of a fierce modernity. His philosophy of life is not solely derived from Hinduism or from Buddhism, from Jainism or the Vedanta. Gandhi represents a rare synthesis of the ancient and the modern, of the East and the West. In his first year in England Gandhi read eighty books on Christianity. The only one

RITCHIE HITS POWER IDEAS OF ROOSEVELT

Maryland Governor, in Bar Speech, Launches Fight for Nomination.

(United Press.)

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland yesterday opened the campaign fight among Democratic presidential possibilities with a speech in which he opposed public ownership in general and public ownership and operation of the power industry particularly.

There seemed no doubt that he was talking at Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, at present regarded as the leading Democratic candidate. He might also have been speaking to a number of leading Democratic politicians and campaign contributors who think Gov. Roosevelt's views on power approach the socialistic.

Where Gov. Roosevelt wants public ownership of power, with private retailing if possible, but public retailing if necessary, Gov. Ritchie hailed the ideal of rugged individualism. More pointedly, in concluding his speech before the American Bar Association at Atlantic City, he said:

"Without meaning to question anybody's sincerity, I may be permitted to wonder whether gentlemen who discourse so extravagantly and so passionately on the subject (of power) are not really laying down a barrage or a smoke screen with which they hope to hide other issues—such, for example, as prohibition—about which they may not think it politically wise to speak so boldly.

"So let us remember that power development is still in the making and let us avoid too many noble experiments which may check or chill it."

The power-passionate gentlemen of whom Ritchie ostensibly spoke are Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania; Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, and Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska. But none has been more articulate, or more power-passionate, than Gov. Roosevelt. Also Gov. Roosevelt has openly, and with some success, fought the adoption of an antiprohibition banner as the Democratic battle flag for 1932.

Gov. Roosevelt, a power leader, was not mentioned in the speech, though his plan to control the gigantic industry is as well known as any, and arouses more horror among rugged individualists than most. In this connection, John J. Raskob, Alfred E. Smith, and other leaders and contributors in the Democratic party do not like Gov. Roosevelt's plan.

The Roosevelt plan, in its first aspects, was inherited from Gov. Smith, his political godfather. This provides for State construction of power plants. The power would be carried up to the retailing point by the State, and from there let out at contract, not permanent

Hope Grows Faint For Atlantic Fliers

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The time limit of its fuel supply having long since passed, the dwindling hope for the finding of the Lisbon to New York plane of three foreign fliers lay tonight in the steamers and patrol boats plying along the eastern seaboard.

The plane with its 48-hour supply of fuel was more than 12 hours over that limit and unreported at 4 p. m. Coast Guard cutters and a few planes, piloted by sympathetic Long Island birdmen at their own expense, searched parts of the North Atlantic coast without result.

For a brief time hope was revived when a large gray plane was sighted over Keene, N. H., at noon, too high for its markings to be distinguished. Airmen said it would have been due in New York at 3 o'clock had it been the Esa. When that hour passed with no sign of the fliers the revived hope quickly died.

READINESS TO EASE WAR DEBTS HINTED

Conditions for Cut Believed Outlined by U. S. Member of League Body.

Geneva, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—A conviction that the United States is ready to ease or ultimately to conceal war debts and reparations on certain conditions was understood today to have been expressed by Norman Davis, American member of the League of Nations financial committee, in a conversation with Foreign Minister Julius Curtius, of Germany.

It was said that Davis told the German foreign minister that the United States attitude would be favorable, provided debt cancellation was an integral part of a more extended project calculated to banish war in Europe and restore confidence in financial stability of the continent.

Davis was reported to favor an extension of the Hoover debt holiday plan, if possible before Congress convenes in December, designed to carry the present development of the debt situation beyond the scheduled end of the holiday next June.

Davis and Curtius talked for about 90 minutes in Curtius' apartment on Monday night. Although Davis, former Undersecretary of the United States Treasury, is a private member of the finance committee, it was understood his views were largely representative of the attitude of leading American bankers.

The German delegation attached great importance to the exchange of ideas between the two men and members were inclined to view the results as indicating a satisfactory settlement of the future of the debts question.

Curtius reassured Davis of Germany's determination to improve relations with France and to place the relations of the two nations on a sound and permanent foundation.

The league's sixth commission passed a resolution extending the European Union Commission for another year, but it was significant that the resolution confined its activities in the future to the question of rapprochement along political lines among European nations. The questions of greater economic cooperation will be handled through other League of Nations channels.

All Big Poland Theaters Closed by Wage Dispute

Warsaw, Poland, (A.P.).—All the important theaters of Poland have been closed since September 1, because of a dispute over performers' contracts, a repercussion of the world economic crisis.

The dispute arose between an association comprising the leading actors, opera singers and concert artists and the theater managers after the economic situation had reduced receipts of Polish amusement places.

Mackay Annoyed By Customs Hunt

False Tip Causes Search of Bridal Baggage at New York.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Clarence H. Mackay, capitalist, returned to New York with his bride, the former Anna Case, opera singer, on the liner Olympic today to encounter what he considered an unfriendly welcome.

He was so miffed by the events that he said tonight he would protest to Washington "an unnecessary delay" in the handling of his baggage. For two hours and a half the Mackays remained on the pier while seven customs and Treasury Department inspectors and officials made a minute examination of their baggage.

The officials said they had been informed anonymously that the Mackays were bringing in undeclared merchandise. Their information was all wrong, they said. For even the wedding gifts the Mackays brought back from Scotland and England were itemized on their foreign individual declarations. The Mackays paid $2,500 in duty.

GANDHI SUBMITS HIS DEMAND FOR INDIAN FREEDOM

Declares Willingness to Accept Modification if Convinced.

EQUAL PARTNERSHIP WITH BRITAIN URGED

Tells London Committee of Dream on Shipboard as He Neared City.

London, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Proclaiming himself to be the representative of India's "dumb and semistarved millions," Mahatma Gandhi today laid before the federal structures committee of the round table conference his demand for complete independence from Great Britain.

At the same time he left open the door for negotiations along more moderate lines.

"If you can show me my claim is inimical to the interests of the dumb millions, I will personally revise it," he said. "I am open to conviction but even so I shall have to ask my principals to consent to that revision."

The mahatma, who said not a word during the first session of the committee yesterday because Monday is his day of silence, proclaimed his program in clear tones, speaking, as always, with measured slowness. He made his address, for which he used no notes, as he sat hunched in a chair at the side of the towering Lord Sankey, chairman of the committee.

Relates Partnership Dream.

Mr. Gandhi told of a dream which came to him as he was nearing Britain's shores last week—a dream of equal partnership between Great Britain and India.

"I do not for a moment minimize the ability of Britain to hold India in subjection under the sword," he said.

Which, he asked, would be better, "an enslaved but rebellious India or an India an esteemed partner with Great Britain to share her sorrows and take part side by side with her in her misfortunes? An India that, if need be, of her own will can fight side by side with Britain, not for the exploitation of a single race or a single human being, but it might be, for the good of the whole world.

"So I said to myself while nearing the shores of this beautiful island of England, 'Perchance it may be possible for you to convince the British ministers that India can be a valuable partner, not held by force but by the silken cord of love.'

Will Pray for Realization.

"What could not two such nations do—one a handful, but brave; the other, a very ancient nation with a glorious past, representing two great cultures, Islam and Hindu.

"In that dream of hope I approached the British Isles and I still maintain that dream. I should love to go away with the conviction that there is to be an honorable and equal partnership between Great Britain and India.

"I can not do anything more than say it will be my fervent prayer dur-

URGES TARIFF

SIR JOHN SIMON.

TARIFF ADVOCATED BY BRITSH LIBERAL

Ardent Free Trade Advocate, Sir John Simon, Reverses Own Stand.

London, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Sir John Simon, prominent liberal and long one of the stanchest free traders in Great Britain, announced in the house of commons today that he had changed his mind and now favored the imposition of tariffs as one means of pulling the nation out of the economic depression.

His declaration was the basis for many predictions that an early election would be held. A wave of optimism swept through the Conservative ranks, in view of their declared intention to fight the next campaign on the tariff issue.

It was even reported that plans were already under way for a quick dissolution of the special session of Parliament and for an election in October. Less extreme observers, however, expected the voting would not come before November.

Sir John said in his speech that something drastic had to be done to restore the trade balance and to avert a situation which is growing more serious daily. A tariff on imports, he added, seemed the only way out.

"I am driven to the conclusion that there is no alternative to putting at once some block in the way of free imports," he said.

There was a storm of interruption when the members realized that this veteran proponent of free trade had shifted his views.

When the uproar ceased, Sir John explained he did not believe an emergency tariff would produce a new haven on earth, but he did believe it to be a necessary step in Britain's economic emergency.

Winston Churchill made a lengthy speech in which he advocated not only tariffs but also an international conference on the gold question.

"Out of the deliberations of such a conference, in some form or other, the final quietus would be administered to the payment of war debts and reparations," he said.

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, took issue with Sir John

PAY REDUCTION BRINGS UNREST IN BRITISH NAVY

Announcement Comes as Great Surprise After Snowden's Plan.

FLEET PARADE OFF AS INQUIRY STARTS

Trouble Begins When Extra Pickets Are Called to Quiet Sailors.

(United Press.)

Sailors in the British navy are protesting violently against reductions in their pay as a part of the government's national economy program.

The "unrest," which will be investigated by the admiralty, began Saturday night in the Atlantic fleet massed off Invergordon, Scotland, for North Sea maneuvers. The sailors smashed windows at the Invergordon recreation ground canteen, sang the "Red Flag," and shouted against the cuts until dispersed by extra pickets summoned from the warships.

Later they were reported to have refused to work, merely sitting around the decks of the warships, singing or playing cards. The naval maneuvers were suspended, the fleet was ordered held in port and all shore leaves were canceled.

The "unrest" since has spread to other parts of the navy, chiefly at Rosyth, where a large group of sailors protested to commanding officers. Most naval bases, however, were reported calm.

Maneuvers Suspended.

London, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Great Britain's Atlantic fleet maneuvers for this year were suspended today by the admiralty and the ships were recalled to harbor because of "unrest" among the personnel as a result of wage cuts which are a part of the new government economy program.

The announcement was made in a statement from the admiralty which said:

"The senior officer of the Atlantic fleet has reported that promulgation of reduced rates of naval pay has led to unrest among a section of the lower rating.

"In consequence of this he has deemed it desirable to suspend the program of exercises of the fleet and to recall the ships to harbor while investigations are being made into representations of hardship occasioned by certain of the cuts in pay in order that these may be reported for the consideration of the board of admiralty."

The senior officer of the fleet referred to in the statement is Rear Admiral Wilfred Tomkinson.

Comes as Great Surprise.

The statement came as a great surprise to the British public which had not had the faintest hint that any difficulty was impending over the cuts in pay proposed in the Snowden budget.

Navy pay cuts proposed under Chancellor Snowden's new emergency budget are similar to those proposed for the army, the London police, London's school teachers and all members of the civil service from the prime minister down. The pay reductions were announced in an admiralty fleet order issued last Saturday. They are effective October 1.

Under the new scale a chief petty officer would be reduced from about $2.12 to $1.87. After three years as a petty officer, the pay normally rises to $2.25. This would be cut to $2. A leading seaman is reduced from $1.31 to $1.08; an able seaman from $1 to 75 cents, and an ordinary seaman from 68 cents to 50 cents a day.

Consultation Reported.

A report was current that a high naval officer had flown from Invergordon to London today and was expected to return to the naval base tomorrow after consultation with admiralty authorities.

The fleet maneuvers were to have begun next Tuesday in the North Sea. The program included attacks by destroyers, submarines and airplanes, and there were to have been night operations in various kinds of gunnery work.

Dissatisfaction of the kind indicated by today's announcement is infrequent in the British navy. The most recent serious trouble with enlisted personnel occurred last January when 30 seamen aboard the Lucia, a submarine depot ship, were court-martialed for mutiny. They had refused to work when their officers canceled a week-end shore leave.

Legion Vote on Rum Seen; Labor Renews Wet Fight

Sales Tax Held Vicious When Liquor Would Provide Revenue.

Organized labor renewed its plea yesterday for modification of the Volstead act as a means of providing needed Federal revenues and at the same time attacked proposals for a sales tax as "vicious" and unsound.

The American Federation of Labor's national committee for modification of the Volstead act contended, in a statement, that the "sane, sensible, American thing to do" was to turn to modification not only for revenue, but also to reduce crime and promote temperance.

"To talk about a sales tax when a sound and immediately available source of vast revenue is available," it said, "is the sheerest nonsense and lack of sanity and wisdom."

The statement did not mention any specific proposals for the creation of sales taxes.

"It is undoubtedly true," the committee said, "that every cent of required revenue could be raised by a sales tax, but it is also true that by that method of raising money we should be merely forcing our people, already deeply swamped in unemploy-

Action by Congress Is Predicted If Veterans Favor Change.

Detroit, Sept. 15.—The Free Press says a high American Legion official said today that the legion national convention here next week will vote on the prohibition question.

This legion official, who is not named, was quoted by the Free Press as saying that Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, predicted action by Congress within 60 days of convocation if the legion goes on record as favoring modification or change of the present prohibition laws.

Senator Fess was not represented as favoring a change, but as giving it as his judgment that Congress will consider revision of the dry laws as a result of the weight of the legion's recommendations.

The legion official was quoted as saying there will be a lively battle on the subject of prohibition, heretofore kept off the floor of legion national conventions, and that there is little possibility of peremptory tabling of the matter.

The Free Press quoted the unnamed official as predicting that the prohibition proposal would be that beer and

Average Drivers Master Trick of New Turn Quickly

Women Even More Successful Than Men in Discarding Routine Habit of Years and Turning to Changed Method; Grandmother Takes Top Score.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

A geometric traffic maneuver was suddenly transmuted into a magnificent moving, human drama yesterday when Washington began to make its new left turn. Every one participated as actor or audience. A city of more than half a million persons was learning to think differently and act differently in a matter of routine that had been the same for years.

It was the average man, and particularly the average woman, who emerged triumphant from the drama played upon the stage of all Washington.

That is the writer's estimate of the spectacle as he watched scene after scene unfold at various intersections throughout most of the day. The basis of that appraisal is revealed in the series of character sketches that etched themselves in his mind as he watched the important readjustment taking place in the consciousness of local motordom.

* * * *

Outstanding among the individual pictures of Washington making its new left turn was the smiling wrinkled little old grandmother of a motorist who demonstrated her skill at Fifteenth and K streets before the new turn was an hour old. Down Fifteenth street she came in her small, obsolete coupe. There was confidence and certitude in her smile. As she approached the intersection she swung over into the middle lane and extended her arm—really extended it—signaling a left turn.

As she passed the crosswalk she turned with the arrow on the pavement and followed the theoretical diagonal white line running to the left of the center of the street.

It was the first time the writer had seen the turn executed properly. He and the other members of the audience smiled their applause.

* * * *

Then, at another intersection, came a skit of the brash young man whose driving comes under the adjective "tumultuous." Very modern and up-to-date he was, in his driving and everything else. The light was green.

FEDERAL RESERVE LEADERS IN PARLEY

Two Proposals Are Rumored as Recommended by Advisory Council.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board's advisory council held its quarterly meeting yesterday with the board, but no statement was made afterward as to what was discussed.

There were rumors that the council, composed of bankers from each of the twelve reserve districts, had recommended two proposals to the board, but officials neither confirmed nor denied them.

In this they adhered to past practice of withholding any information as to discussions taking place in these quarterly sessions. The council is merely an advisory body and can only make recommendations for the board's consideration.

Yesterday's meeting followed a White House dinner conference Monday night at which President Hoover obtained from each member of the council his attitude on present business conditions.

A published report that the President had discussed with the bankers a possible extension to four or five years of the one-year war debt-reparations moratorium was termed a "complete fabrication" yesterday by Theodore Joslin, one of Mr. Hoover's secretaries.

Joslin, after talking with the President, said a moratorium extension had never been discussed by the Chief Executive with any one, and that no such move was contemplated at the White House.

Eugene Meyer, governor of the Reserve Board, said after the White House conference that the bankers had assured the President that their districts would be in a position to provide their own unemployment relief this winter without Federal assistance.

He added that each council member informed the President of conditions in his district and as a result Mr. Hoover obtained a "very comprehensive picture" of the business situation.

The White House also denied there was any truth to a report that the council had recommended to the President that steps be taken to legalize beer. Walter Lichtenstein, Chicago banker and secretary of the council, also denied this was discussed.

Senate Banking Group To Prepare Legislation

(Associated Press.)

With a view to drafting legislation to submit to the December session of Congress, the Senate banking committee, headed by Senator Glass, will meet in November. The subcommittee held extensive hearings on the banking situation last session.

The Virginia Democrat, who helped frame the Federal Reserve act, introduced bills during the last session to revise both the national banking and Federal Reserve acts to curb chain banking and to prevent use of reserve funds in stock market speculation. He said he felt the subcommittee had enough data on which to frame legislation.

Bar to Ship Parley Rapped by Sheedy

Former Official Asks That He Have Right to Attend U. S. Lines Sessions.

(Associated Press.)

Joseph E. Sheedy, former executive vice president of the United States Lines, yesterday demanded of the Shipping Board that as "the second largest stockholder of common stock" he be permitted to attend conferences looking to future operation of the lines by the Chapman-Dollar-Dawson interests.

Through his attorney, Elisha Hanson, Sheedy requested also that the board insist upon the observance of all existing contracts of the lines in whatever "contractural arrangement the board enters into or approves with the Chapman-Dollar-Dawson interests or any other interest or interests."

The offer of P. W. Chapman, president of the lines; R. Stanley Dollar, and Kenneth D. Dawson, for the future control of the lines, is now pending before the board. Their bid was received after Chapman had appealed for financial assistance.

Gold Star Mothers Hear Shipe Address

A. K. Shipe, chairman of the Hospitality Committee of the District of Columbia George Washington Bicentennial Commission, delivered an address last night before the American Gold Star Mothers at Hamilton Hotel.

The theme of Mr. Shipe's talk was the District Commission's plans for observance of Mother's Day next June when special exercises will be held commemorating Washington's devotion to his mother.

A national search is being conducted by the District Commission for the oldest native-born mother, of the racial strain of the early Americans, so that she may be brought here as an honored guest of the Nation.

By JOHN J. DALY

IN the world-wide wake of retrenchment, the League of Nations is called upon to cut down expenses.

As the home offices of some of the members are balancing their budgets—notably, Great Britain—it is felt by delegates to Geneva that a like process there will set a good example for the world at large.

Unlike the National and the American Leagues, in this country, the League of Nations is not a paying proposition, viewed from one standpoint. On the other hand, it pays only too well. Disgruntled delegates claim it is paying too much to its employes.

* * * *

ONE good ball team, like Connie Mack's Athletics, and a really great home-run slugger, like Herman "Babe" Ruth, and the League of Nations would be raising instead of lowering salaries.

It looks now as if something of this sort will have to be started at Geneva. A great stadium, large enough to seat, say, a million or so spectators, would pay for itself in a few years, provided, of course, the proper programs were presented. This ought to be rather easy, considering the membership of the league.

Mexico, just having gained admission, could be called upon for a spirited series of jai-alai games, and Spain, the land of the toreadors, could put on enough exhibitions to keep the gala events going for months at a time.

Of course, this is not all. England has its cricketers; the Norwegian peoples, their ski-jumpers; the Greeks, those wrestlers, and the Japanese, gymnasts and jiu-jitsu artists.

* * * *

SINCE America has yet to join the league, the exhibitions would be devoid of the great national sport, baseball; but the Italians have a handball game that is almost equally attractive, and the Venezuelans, all members in good standing, are rather fast on their feet in some of the spectacular sports.

Whatever is done must be done soon, for the League of Nations has only $6,000,000 to spend up to the end of this year. Then, a new budget must be arranged.

It is charged that the secretary general gets a salary bigger than the presidents and rulers of some of the nations represented in the league. In the language of America, he gets twenty grand for sending out invitations to the annual meetings. A good stenographer is worth the price of a few senators and representatives in the smaller nations, and the man who calls the roll gets as much as the mayor of an average-sized American town.

* * * *

IN any paring of salaries, the idea will be to start at the top and work down to the bottom: "Some officials of the league are getting salaries beyond the wildest dreams of any government functionary," a Norwegian delegate asserts, while attention is called to the cloak room concession—where all the high hats are checked. That alone is worth a king's ransom.

It would seem, then, that the only way out of the league's difficulties is to couple some sort of amusement enterprise with the study of statesmanship. Monte Carlo makes money. So do the resorts along the Riviera—from Nice to Genoa, the coast of the setting sun, and from Genoa to Spezia, the coast of the rising sun. All are profitable ventures.

The League of Nations needs only to put on an international bathing beauty contest once a year, throw a bull fight every now and then, or stage a good old-fashioned wrestling tournament. Presto! The budget will be balanced—and how!

SUGAR DUTY PROBE MAY BARE DEFECTS

Important Data on Imports Expected by Official of Tariff Body.

(Associated Press.)

Acting Chairman Page of the Tariff Commission yesterday forecast that the new investigation of duties on sugar probably would bring forth much information related to Philippine production, liquefied sugar imports and an alleged discrimination against American refiners in the Smoot-Hawley rates.

"It is highly probable," Mr. Page said, "that the commission will find it necessary to make some inquiry directly in our own outlying possessions, as well as in foreign countries. Sugar from the Philippines comes into this country duty free."

Domestic producers raised a clamor against "liquid" sugar imports last spring, claiming the United States was losing millions in revenue through a "loophole" of the 1930 tariff act allowing raw sugar to be imported in liquid form at much lower rates. A test of the Treasury's authority to demand the raw sugar rate on such imports is now pending in a Federal court in Georgia.

American manufacturers contended it cost 2 cents more to import the raw material to manufacture 100 pounds of sugar than the total duty on the same amount of refined sugar imported.

It is understood this complaint was one of the chief points raised by the domestic industry in agitating for the inquiry. These interests have stressed increasing imports of refined sugar from Cuba, and an alleged drive there, to modernize refining processes and otherwise strengthen that branch of the industry.

Mr. Page was asked whether the commission's brief announcement that sugar and related products would be investigated under the flexible provision of the new tariff act meant a reopening of all the complicated items of the section. "It means practically that," he responded.

Grain Exports in Week Drop Under 1930 Total

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports last week from the United States amounted to 1,461,000 bushels, against 1,692,000 bushels the week before and 2,570,000 during the corresponding week of 1930.

Commerce figures yesterday gave the following comparison between last week's exports and those of the week before: Wheat, 1,202,000 bushels, against 1,286,000; barley, 150,000, against 245,000; corn, 23,000, against 44,000; oats, 69,000, against 108,000; rye, 17,000, against 9,000. Canadian grains exported last week from United States Atlantic ports amounted to 99,000 bushels, against 1,312,000 bushels.

TAX RATE INCREASE IS FAVORED BY GLASS

Virginia Senator Answers Opposition to Proposal Voiced by Tilson.

(Associated Press.)

Opposition by Representative Tilson, Connecticut, House Republican leader, to pay revision in the next Congress was met with an assertion by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, yesterday that he believed increases necessary.

Another Democratic senator, Gore, of Oklahoma, said he made his campaign on the platform, "Less taxes, more trade, no trusts," and that he thought increased levies should be avoided if possible.

He said, however, that it might not be possible to avoid increases because of conditions.

Tilson said "stringent economy" would make the proposed increases unnecessary.

"There is nothing which would upset business more generally," he added, "We will have to borrow, but I see no great danger in that."

On the other hand, Senator Glass said taxes in the higher brackets should be boosted and that the tax base should be broadened to reach many who are now exempt.

With this went the assertion that the Government should "radically reduce its expenditures."

"I have felt that this country should adopt the attitude of Great Britain," he said, "not only in regard to lessening expenditures, but to widening the tax base and increasing the surtax rates.

"If every American should be made to feel a direct interest in Government through taxes, they might select their public officials a bit more carefully," he continued.

Paris Most Musical City, Record of Concerts Shows

1,140 Opera Performances Given in Year, With 390 Symphony Orchestra Presentations; American Singers Are Given Chance.

Paris (U.P.).—Judging from the number of concerts given each year in Paris, the French capital is the most musical city in the world.

New York with its endowed orchestras and vast music halls is far behind Paris in both the number of musical attractions and in point of their originality.

Berlin, despite its Wagnerian tradition, and the glamour of the Philharmonic, is far behind Paris. London is outdistanced.

During the last concert year, Paris gave a total of 2,482 performances. Of these, 1,140 were grand operas, light operas and operettas; there were 390 symphony orchestra concerts, 164 piano recitals, 67 song recitals, 47 violin rectials, 48 chamber music concerts, 23 choral concerts, 31 cello, harp and organ concerts, and 72 combined and special musical concerts.

It is true, according to the critics, that many of these programs would not add much to musical art, but the effort is there, and among many artists, there are certainly more likely to be a few who might be touched with the divine hand of genius.

Visiting Americans have varied impressions of the Parisian symphony orchestras. They are small, the musicians work in all kinds of jobs when not playnig classic themes, and even their poor instruments have come under the fire of critical comment, but no one can dispute the sincereity of the programs offered by the four or five orchestras of Paris. The halls are not large and the conductors do not receive fortunes for conducting. But in this city of Debussy and Ravel and d'Indy and Milhaud, nothing is too daring, or too "unknown," to be tried out. There is hardly a symphonic program that bears a hackneyed look. The American orchestras are the most conservative, and it is rare that a major offering, such as the main symphony, would be sacrificed to some unknown struggler in art, but in Paris, one frequently sees a program with every piece by living writers, and by young writers.

In contrast to this open door in symphonic and chamber music, the grand opera sticks pretty well to the old loves, such as Faust, Samson and Delilah, Aida, Tannhauser and the Russians. Money is lacking for new ventures, although from time to time, a thing like Phaedre, with Ida Rubinstein, may be put on. The Opera Comique is the joy of Parisians and foreigners alike, for there one hears La Boheme, Pagliacci, Manon, Louise, the Tales of Hoffman, and a liberal sprinkling of new and untried works.

American singers are given every opportunity, and some of them who have held up American traditions in art are Mary McCormick, Mary Lewis, Madeleine Keltie, Hallie Stiles and Sidney Rayner, and a host of others. The Comique is always crowded, night after night, winter and summer. The grand opera is almost as popular. The places are not expensive, and considering the meager endowment these houses get from the state, their offerings are labors of love, for the remuneration could not be high, and the effects obtained are a credit to the ingenuity and economic genius of the directors.

MEXICO CELEBRATES INDEPENDENCE DAY

Carnival Crowd Throngs Plaza as President Repeats 1810 Liberty Cry.

Mexico City, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—A gay carnival crowd of many thousands danced and sang through the streets of the capital tonight as Mexico began to celebrate the 121st anniversary of its independence from Spain.

Similar festivities were taking place in every other city and hamlet of the republic, but the national merry-making reached its height in the great Plaza de la Constitucion in front of the National Palace.

The plaza by midevening was packed by a great throng, constantly increased by a steady stream of humanity from Avenida Madero and a dozen other crowded streets. Traffic throughout the city's central district moved at a snail's pace, most of the automobiles in sight carrying parties celebrating the holiday in song.

Inside the National Palace, President Pascual Ortiz Rubio and his wife held a state reception for high government officials, the diplomatic corps and other distinguished guests.

The president, shortly before midnight, performed on the principal balcony of the palace the traditional ceremony of the grito, the hallowed cry of Mexican independence in memory of the village priest, Father Miguel Hidalgo, who launched the long war for independence in the parish church at Dolores, Guanajuato, September 16, 1810.

In this ceremony, the president stands beneath the same bell, which, in 1890, hung in the tower of Father Hidalgo's little church.

Tomorrow, September 16, is Mexico's national holiday and independence celebrations are to be held all over the country.

Pan-American Mail Rate To Be Raised, Is Forecast

(Associated Press.)

An upward revision of Pan-American postage rates was predicted yesterday by W. Irving Glover, Assistant Postmaster General, as a probable outgrowth of the international postal conference to be held in Madrid October 10. Representatives of all Pan-American countries and Spain will be represented.

Postomces all over the world, Glover said today, have been struggling with deficits, postal rates not having kept pace with increased transportation costs. Pointing to the increased rate to Canada and England put into effect by the United States September 1, the Assistant Postmaster General predicted other countries would follow suit.

Legal Electrocution Declared 'Accident'

(United Press.)

The Supreme Court will be asked to decide at its coming session the novel question whether a man electrocuted for murder died an accidental death.

The question is raised by Joseph A. and Esther R. Diamond, assignees of two $5,000 insurance policies held by Harry H. Diamond, who died of electrocution in the Indiana State Penitentiary October 12, 1923. Diamond was sentenced to death for killing his wife, Nettie, in Gary, Ind.

While the insurance company was willing to pay the face value of the two policies it demanded a court determination of its liability to pay the double indemnity provided for accidental death.

TEXAS LEGISLATOR FLAYS HUEY LONG

Louisiana Governor's Plan Is Believed Killed by His Bribery Charges.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The wrath of Texas legislators, aroused by accusations of Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana that they were influenced by money, appeared tonight to have destroyed any chances for adoption by Texas of the 1932 cotton prohibition plan championed by Long.

No vote was in prospect before tomorrow but sentiment in both houses appeared aligned definitely in support of acreage curtailment, either to one-third or one-fourth of the land in cultivation. Members predicted this action would result in a 50 per cent reduction in the 1932 crop.

The House was swept into an uproar of indignation today and cheered Representative T. H. McGregor, of Austin, a Southern orator of the old school, as he denounced Gov. Long in the bitterest language heard on the floor of the chamber in many years.

Repeated in Senate.

After he had spoken in the House, 18 of the 31 senators signed a resolution asking him to address the Senate and members of the House trooped over in a body to hear the second attack.

"Have we reached the point in Texas," he demanded, "when the Governor of Louisiana can indict the Texas Legislature as being subject to wine, women and money and let the Governor of Louisiana get away with it?" The legislators responded with an uproar of "No's" and cheers.

He said Long had charged the Texas Legislature was swayed by a paid lobby and that the lobby was headed by the cotton exporting firm of Anderson, Clayton & Co., of Houston.

Long Charges Sale.

Gov. Long was quoted from New Orleans as replying: "It is an out-and-out sale. That is the only explanation we can give for the Legislature hesitating to give the people of Texas, and of the South, something they want and need. Cash money—that is all there is to it. They are spending all kinds of money over there."

HOOVER HOLDS ALOOF ON COTTON PROBLEM

President Watches Progress Talks Between Bankers and Exporters.

(Associated Press.)

Efforts to solve the cotton surplus problem are being carried forward without the direct guiding hand of President Hoover.

While he is interested in the subject and has suggested an export credit arrangement to stimulate movement of the 1931 crop, the Chief executive himself has not formulated a definite plan of restoring a measure of economic security for the Southern farmer.

Mr. Hoover's suggestion for the setting up of a credit basis for exporting the staple abroad was made to several representative bankers. He discussed the idea last week with Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and W. L. Clayton, Texas cotton merchant.

The proposal is now the subject of further discussions between bankers and cotton exporters here and abroad. The Farm Board, whose rejected plan of destroying one-third of the present crop evoked criticism and a flood of countersuggestions, has no part in these talks.

The President has indorsed no single plan from the hundreds advanced as a means of reducing surplus supplies and increasing prices. He is known, however, to be watching with interest the efforts of Southern States to deal with the problem.

The Farm Board apparently has determined to limit its activities in the situation to attempts to bring about acreage reduction and assist in holding cotton through cooperatives. It has no intention of making further stabilization purchases and probably will retain its stocks of 1,300,000 bales for another year.

Any immediate increase in price, therefore, seems to hinge on the prospects of passing "no 1932 cotton" or acreage reduction bills in the South or the arrangement of credit for foreign buyers with which to store up supplies for the next year, or more.

Gov. Long of Louisiana sponsor of the bill prohibiting planting next year, which already has passed his State's Legislature, predicted 20-cent cotton if other Commonwealths approved the proposal. Texas now is considering it.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, late today wired Representative A. P. Johnson of the Texas Legislature that no session of the North Carolina General Assembly would be called to consider legislation to abandon completely the growing of cotton in North Carolina in 1932.

Uniform Law Is Planned To Curb NarcoticGrowth

(Associated Press.)

A uniform law to prohibit the growing of marijuana plants is being prepared for presentation to the different State Legislatures. Commissioner Anslinger of the Narcotic Bureau said the Federal Government under the Constitution could not dictate what could be grown within the individual States.

He said marijuana was used chiefly in Louisiana, Texas and California. The flowers are smoked in cigarettes. Anslinger said Texas enacted a law prohibited the growing of marijuana, which went into effect July 1. He explained that the plant was so easily grow that there was practically no interstate commerce in it.

New Mail Law Urged As Curb on Racketeers

(Associated Press.)

A Federal law to use as a club upon gangsters, racketeers and others who use the mails to send threatening letters was urged yesterday by Representative Cochran, Democrat, Missouri.

He said he would introduce a bill in the next session making it a penitentiary offense to send threatening letters through the mails.

ment and misery, deeper into the gloom of depression."

The committee pointed out that in the last preprohibition year revenues of about $529,000,000 had been realized as a result of liquor sales.

In addition to gaining part of this total revenue through modification, the committee said, at least 80 lines of manufacture would be stimulated, income taxes would be increased, gains would be realized in employment and buying power would be strengthened.

Turing back to the sales tax, the statement asserted this method of raising revenue was "subject to manipulation and impossible of enforcement without abuse."

"Inevitably," it said, "the burden is placed upon the poor."

LEGION VOTE SEEN UPON PROHIBITION

wine containing 3½ per cent alcohol be legalized. The official was represented as feeling certain a resolution embodying this proposal would receive support of a majority of the delegates.

The commander's ruling at Boston last year that prohibition was a political issue and thus out of order was recalled, but the Free Press said the official it quoted believed that the matter would not be viewed in that light this year.

Senator Fess denied last night published statements attributed to him that Congress would act upon prohibition revision within 60 days after convocation if the American Legion voted next week in favor of a change.

"There is not one iota of truth in it," the Ohio Republican said after listening to the report representing him as believing Congress would act as a result of the Legion's recommendations. "There is absolutely no foundation for such a statement attributed to me."

FARM GROUP OPENS 5-POINT OFFENSIVE

Agriculture Leaders Seek to Coordinate Efforts of All Interests.

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A 5-point offensive, designed to unify America's agricultural interests, was launched today by State extension directors and farm agency representatives.

Formulated in a two-day conference called by the American Farm Bureau Federation, the plan of battle consists of:

Strengthening the State extension services to more completely round up the farm people into the general farm organizations.

Instilling the "principles of true cooperation" in rural communities through forces of land grant colleges, extension service, general farm organizations, the Federal Farm Board, cooperative associations, teachers of vocational agricultural education and the rural press.

Coordination of the work of all farm agencies.

Assumption by farm agencies of individual responsibility "for meeting misleading propaganda and misinformation with facts, and for correctly informing the American public of the needs, hopes and aspirations of the farm people."

A demand that "adequate means" be made available by Congress "to meet the further demands upon the services which the extension departments are rendering."

MAGNET MAY SOLVE COLLINGS MYSTERY

Effort Will Be Made to Find Yacht Anchor, Believed Used in Drowning.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Hope of solving the Long Island "pirate" mystery was placed tonight by authorities in the belief that grappling hoks and marine magnets might locate the body of Benjamin Collings, missing yachtsman, and in an offer of immunity to one of the unknown pair named by Mrs. Collins as her husband's assailants.

Even while plans were being made for a search of the waters of Lonk Island Sound, the wife of the man who vanished from his cruiser Wednesday night expressed a conviction he still was alive.

But a few hours later District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, of Nassau County, came from a conference with the yachting party that found the Collings' small daughter on their otherwise abandoned cruiser and said:

"What I have just been told practically clinches our belief murder was committed on the Penguin."

He said the four men, who had been on a fishing trip early Thursday, told him that as they neared the Penguin they distinctly saw a man in the water; that he was struggling and gasping and that his body suddenly vanished. They were convinced he had drowned.

The offer of immunity to the younger of the two men Mrs. Collings said tied her husband, pushed him into the Sound and then kidnaped her was made through the press by Edwards.

The plan to use marine magnets, as well as grappling hooks, was made after it had been discovered that a 45-pound anchor was missing from the Collings cruiser Penguin. The 1½-inch rope to which it had been attached had been cut.

"This indicates it may have been used by the murderers to weigh down the body of their victim," Edwards said.

SCHOFIELD AND LEIGH GET NEW COMMANDS

Annapolis Classmates Take Over Highest Sea Posts in Navy Ceremony.

San Pedro, Calif., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Two veteran naval officials, who more than 40 years ago were classmates at Annapolis, stood on the gleaming decks of the battleship Texas today and watched each other assume high commands of the Nation's floating forces.

The shift in America's battle fleet brought Admiral Frank H. Schofield into the position of commander in chief and raised Vice Admiral Richard H. Leigh to the rank of admiral in command of the battle force, the position relinquished by Admiral Schofield, his Annapolis classmate.

Another Annapolis graduate, who preceded Admirals Schofield and Leigh by a year in leaving the Navay Academy an ensign, relinquished the command of the Nation's floating forces to Admiral Schofield. He is Admiral Jehu V. Chase, whose duty at Washington as a member of the Navy General Board accompanies a reversion of title to rear admiral.

In true naval tradition the shift in commands was made in a colorful ceremony. Swords rattled, cannon boomed and the blare of martial music echoed along battleship row as officers and men alike, attired in full dress, carried out the naval formation usual at such events.

AIMEE M'PHERSON'S MATE SUED AS JILT

Woman Is Seeking $200,000 and Charges Him With Breach of Promise.

Los Angeles, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—An alleged love came out of the past today to haunt the honeymoon of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, and her new husband, David L. Hutton.

It had been much the same with Mrs. Minnie "Ma" Kennedy, her mother, when she married a few months before.

Myrtle H. St. Pierre, 24-year-old nurse, filed a $200,000 breach of promise suit against the 230-pound New York and Los Angeles barytone today. It was only Sunday that the evangelist and her singer husband eloped by airplane to Yuma, Ariz., and were married. They were making preparations to leave for Ventura, Calif., and Portland, Oreg., to conduct revival services.

"Just headlines, Dave," sighed Mrs. McPherson-Hutton, as she read the charges. "Just headlines. I told you I'd get you into some sort of mess, if you married me."

"It's worth it, dear," Hutton smiled, dimpling.

Up in Las Vegas, Nev., Guy Edward Hudson moved to get out of the legal tangle in which he found himself shortly after he took Mrs. Kennedy as a bride by a moonlit lake in the State of Washington. He filed suit for divorce from Mrs. L. Margaret Newton-Hudson. Mrs. Kennedy previously had had her marriage to him annulled after their honeymoon had been interrupted by the discovery of Mrs. Newton-Hudson's prior claim to him.

Miss St. Pierre, who was said by her attorneys to be in seclusion, charged that last January Mr. Hutton made love to her, promised to marry her and betrayed her. In April, she alleged, Mr. Hutton refused to see or speak to her. This action and his marriage has caused her great mental anguish, she said, and she has become "broken in health physically and nervously and will continue for a long time so to be."

Mr. Hutton described the charges as "ridiculous" and at first denied having known her, but later admitted he had known a Joan St. Pierre and that she might be the same person. Friends said she had used both names.

Virginia Expects Loss Of $3,000,000 in Taxes

Richmond, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Virginia faces a total decrease in revenue of approximately $3,000,000 during the next biennium, the governor's advisory commission on the budget was told today.

State Comptroller E. R. Combs reported that the reduction would be caused in large measure by decreased tax returns from railroads and public service corporations, which are taxed on the basis of gross receipts. Decreases also are anticipated in returns from merchants' licenses and from corporate and individual income taxes as result of the general business depression.

RELATIVES QUIZZED IN DROWNING PROBE

Authorities in Virginia Are Seeking "Key" Letters; Professor Held.

Hampton, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Parents and close relatives of Mrs. Jenny Graham Kane, whose husband, Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, of the University of Tennessee, is held on charges of murder, were questioned tonight by Coroner George K. Vanderslice as he sought more light on the drowning of Mrs. Kane at an isolated section of Chesapeake Bay.

The examination was conducted at the office of the coroner while attorneys and witnesses summoned to an inquest at 5 o'clock waited almost two hours at the jail, where the professor is held without bail. The testimony was not made public.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Graham, of Hilton Village, father and mother of the dead woman, and Mrs. H. C. Abbott, a sister of Mrs. Kane, as well as the Rev. J. D. Hosier, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Hilton, were questioned by the coroner. Mrs. Abbott, who has visited Hilton several times while the Kanes were here, was recalled from her home in Salem, Va., for the inquest.

Search for "Key" Letters.

After an all-day search for several "key" letters, which officers said they had not discovered, Coroner George K. Vanderslice said he looked to the letters, whose contents are said to have been divulged to officers to establish a motive if the drowning was homicidal, as charged in the warrant against Kane, and not accidental.

Many rumors were in circulation here today as to the contents of the letters, but officers said they could not comment until there was some evidence in their possession on which to base reports coming from unannounced sources.

Kane, scion of a prominent Pennsylvania family, remained in jail today without bond, reiterating his statement to officers that his wife's drowning in Chesapeake Bay was accidental.

Partial Corroboration.

Partial corroboration of Kane's statements that he sought to revive his wife after dragging her ashore in an unconscious condition was given the coroner by one of seven fishermen who claim to have witnessed the drowning. This man said he saw a man and woman splashing in the water, heard the woman scream and the man call for help. He also said the man picked the woman up and lowered her several times after gaining the beach.

The testimony given by the fishermen was not made public. It was learned, they said, they suspected foul play when they observed the vigorous splashing of the man and woman in the water near Grand View. This led to their report to officers when they read of Mrs. Kane's death.

In his cell at the jail, Kane did not want to go over the statements he made to officers. "I expect absolute vindication," he said. "I have nothing to hide and I hope the public will withhold judgment until the full facts are established."

Heflin Speech Permit Revoked by Coast City

Bakersfield, Cal., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The City Council voted today to revoke a permit recently issued by the city manager to former United States Senator Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, to speak at the Greek Theater in Beale Park here September 25. The revocation order was passed at the request of the Rev. J. Stack, of the Roman Catholic Diocese, who headed a protest delegation.

City officials at Fresno refused Heflin a permit last week to use the Civic Auditorium there.

No reasons for the protest against Heflin were announced here, but at Fresno officials said they did not wish to stir up a religious controversy.

Woodside Carnival Continues.

The annual carnival of Grace Episcopal Church, Woodside, Md., will continue through this week to Saturday on the carnival grounds opposite the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department hall on Georgia avenue.

The GIRL About Town

MARTHA GOLD, secretary of Senator Moses' committee on rules, is one of the most efficient secretaries in Washington, and is, of course, a stickler on enforcement of the rules. One of the rules prohibits peddlers from plying their trade in the Capitol. So when an Italian turned up the other day, offering a plaster bust of George Washington, Mrs. Gold waved him away, and when he persisted in trying to hand her the bust she had the police order him out of the building. Then she opened her mail and found the following:

"My dear Senator Moses: I am taking the liberty of sending you a replica of the famous bust of George Washington, which our Bicentennial Commission is distributing to important personages. I trust you will find it an ornament for your office. Sincerely yours, Sol Bloom."

"Go it, husband! Go it, bear!" shout the Republicans as Al Smith and Franklin Roosevelt prepare their hand-to-hand struggle for Democratic leadership. And after that beautiful "Happy Warrior" speech of Franklin Roosevelt's, too! Well, the best of friends must part some time. Political love often flies out of the window when self-interest walks in the nomination door.

It is always very amusing to me to note the number of men who retire to private life "in order to provide for their families" at the close of an administration or the beginning of a new one. We may look for several reluctant resignations of this kind shortly after the season opens. Who are they to be? That would be telling. I am not going to do all the work for the correspondents. I am working too hard on my new book, "Washington as It Is and Ain't."

MRS. MAURICE THATCHER is with the representative from Kentucky in the Holy Land. With her gorgeous red hair and vivid coloring, she will fit into the picture. She could pose for a figure in a stained glass window of Biblical times. The Thatchers entertain nicely and are a credit to the Blue Grass delegation. Naturally, Kentucky parties used to be more exciting, but a good time is had by all at the Thatcher parties.

There will be gay times out Rock Creek way now the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics and Mrs. David S. Ingalls have taken Twin Oaks, the beautiful Bell estate, and Commander and Mrs. William D. Thomas have Graystone. The only thing lacking in Secretary Ingalls' new home is a flying field. Perhaps the Ingalls will adopt Mrs. C. C. Calhoun's plan at Rossdhu, and have a landing place built on top of the house.

Helen Bristol and, of course, the rear admiral will return to Washington this week. They have been visiting Lt. and Mrs. Harold Knowlton. Helen Bristol holds her own in Washington, just as she did in Constantinople when the admiral was high commissioner there, and visiting Americans had such a glorious time at their house.

Senator Borah will be back next week, getting ready for his big job as the only real orator in the Senate. Alas, there are no Clays, Websters or Calhouns in the Congress of today. Dispassionate facts and figures, culled by experts and secretaries in the Library of Congress stacks, have taken the place of the fiery peroration, the bitter invective, the upraised arms and theatric poses affected by statesmen of an earlier day. The last orator before Borah was John Sharp Williams, scholar, classmate of the former kaiser, poet and lover of nature. John Sharp forsook the senatorial arena for his mocking birds and beloved gardens in the Southland.

LETTER FROM WOOD RESIGNING GAS POST IS BARED AT HEARING

Company Head Declared He Did Not Agree With Peirce's Policies.

MAY TAKE CHAIR TODAY TO TESTIFY IN INQUIRY

Note Charges Unfair Method of Secretly Reporting Upon Matters.

Efforts of District officials to trace ownership of the Washington Gas Light Co. to the Central Public Service Co. have been brought another step nearer success by discovery of a letter written by George A. G. Wood, resigning as president of the gas company.

The letter was written by Mr. Wood on August 5 to A. E. Peirce, president of the Central Service Co., in Chicago. His determination not to permit himself to be reelected, Mr. Wood said in the letter, was prompted by his disagreement with "many of the present methods and policies" inaugurated by William H. Wildes and Duncan C. McClure, referred to as associates of Mr. Peirce.

The letter of resignation was among the papers taken from Mr. Wood's private file in his home at Edgemore, Md., and, together with other papers, will form the basis of detailed questioning of Mr. Wood, Mr. Peirce and perhaps other officers of the Central Public Service Co. before the end of the hearing now going on before the District Public Utilities Commission.

Mr. Wood's letter said:

"For some time the welfare of the Washington Gas Light Co. has given me particular concern. In Chicago on July 23 last, I frankly gave my thoughts concerning several important matters relating to it to your associates, Messrs. Wildes and McClure.

Disagrees With Methods.

"Because I do not agree with many of the present methods and policies, including a very serious curtailment in the scope of executive activities resulting in a real and embarrassment impairment in the proper exercise of executive functions, I am writing you, inasmuch as you represent the majority stock control, to inform you that I shall not permit my name to be used as a candidate for reelection to the office of president at the next annual meeting. Furthermore, the undue credence give nto false rumors, prompted in many if not all instances by ulterior motives, and the unfair method of secretly reporting upon matters indisputably within the jurisdiction or discretion of the executive officials, has been exceedingly disconcerting.

"In the meantime, we shall continue to administer this situation with the same degree of stewardship that we have given to it in the past, at all times having in mind the public, the employes and all the stockholders. The accomplishments since the present executives took charge, we believe, speak for themselves.

"I shall be very glad to amplify my views on the entire matter if you so desire."

May Testify Today.

Mr. Wood may take the witness chair in the course of the hearing before the utilities commission today and Mr. Peirce, who has been subpenaed by the commission, is expected to appear later, probably next week, by which time the pressure phase of the hearing is expected to be concluded and the question of ownership taken up. The commission is investigating the ownership to ascertain if the company is not owned in violation of the La Follette anti-merger law which prohibits outside power combinations owning any considerable part of Washington public utilities.

Walter M. Russell, chief engineer of the gas company, occupied the witness chair at the hearing yesterday. He was under examination by members of the commission and by William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, and Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel. Mr. Russell insisted that the proposal of the company to have higher pressure, approved by the commission, would not work to the detriment of consumers by increasing their gas bills. Consumers, he said, would suffer more through too low than too high pressure. The average housewife, he said, regulates the flow of gas by the appearance of the flame and the sound of the burner and such regulation would forestall boosted gas bills because of higher pressure in the gas mains. The higher pressure is desired by the company in order to get required gas from its containers to distant consumers.

C. C. Mayer, just before adjournment of the hearing for the day, moved that the whole proceeding be dismissed because of lack of authority of the Public Utilitis Commission. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, commission chairman, overruled the motion, declaring that the commission had ample authority to inquire into operation of the gas company. The hearing will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

HOOVER DRAWS PLAN TO AID HOME OWNING

interest here because it is well known he feels the surest way to bring the country out of depression is to provide some new, or specially stimulated, industry. He discussed this with newspapermen on his way back from his last speaking tour. He cited how the growth of the radio industry had provided new jobs and new outlets for capital, and suggested himself that one possible new industry might develop through providing cheap artificial cooling systems in individual homes.

It was interesting also, as regards financing, to recall the billions of dollars in idle money now in savings banks.

Groups Behind Plan.

An indication of the forces the President has put behind his new campaign for home building and home owning is shown in the organizations and people named in his statement.

His planning committee, which has done the general preliminary work, is composed of such organizations as: American Federation of Labor, American Institute of Architects, Associated General Contractors, Association of Life Insurance Presidents, Chamber of Commerce of the United States, General Federation of Women's Clubs, National Association of Real Estate Boards, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, National Farmers Union and the National Grange with others, making 20 altogether, all of national scope.

Subjects treated by individual committees range from finance to "blighted areas and slums," taking in all aspects of the housing problem. The finance committee, perhaps the most important, is headed by Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., which represents a type of company that has tremendous sums to invest.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL.

THIS is a story—or maybe only a squib—about a song-writer.

There are plenty of song-writers, but this one is a trifle differentiated from the rest. Why? Well, for one thing, because he is a successful one, and one of the first to conceive the idea of writing theme songs for motion pictures and putting the idea into practice—may the good Jehovah have mercy on his soul!

Twenty years ago he was a pianist in a Coney Island cabaret—just a little bit frightened, because was only then starting out in life, fortified solely by a soul for music. They paid him a lot of money for those days—$35 a week.

Across the street was another cabaret. This place also employed a young pianist, but paid him $40 per week, for which he only worked from ten to fourteen hours a day. This lad was Vincent Lopez.

From the cabaret this youthful striver went into vaudeville, playing piano for the Dolly Sisters, the Cameron Sisters, Mellette Sisters, one of whom became his wife, for Harry Fox and for Frank Fay. In between times he composed songs. One of the first was "Everybody Wants the Key to My Cellar." This was the beginning of a real career. The offers began to pour in. He did a Winter Garden show, a Century Roof show, several numbers for "Sally, Ireen and Mary" and more for numerous other productions.

Then something happened. He lapsed into one of those peculiarly blank mental states in which nothing will come. He tried hard, but neither his lines nor his melodies seemed to possess that indefinable something necessary to make them click. He was asked to resign from the music publishing firm that was employing him. He tried to get work. Nobody wanted him. Then he happened upon Erno Rapee, conductor of the symphony orchestra at the Roxy in New York. Together they wrote the words and music for "Chairmaine."

Believe it or not—and I am genuflecting to Bob Ripley—nobody wanted the tune or any part of its lyrics. Finally the brother of our hero sold it to a music house. You know the rest. It sold over 1,000,000 copies—in fact, the total sales topped a million and a half.

Encouraged by this success, the subject of these observations went to work with renewed vigor turning out theme songs by the bale. If they ever come back into favor on the screen, this lad will be the dean of the corps producing them.

Who is this guy? Need you ask?

Well, then, it is Lew Pollack, heading the week's vaudeville bill at the Earle—in a skit called "Theme Songs," what else?

He just finished a couple of months with that perennial bill at the Palace Theater in New York, along with Lou Holtz and Kate Smith and all the rest.

Yeah, quite a fellow—and there is a platinumb londe in his act . . . .

Jouett Shouse and Carter Glass were among the prominent Democrats who last night participated in the dedication of the plaque in commemoration of the attendance of the late President Woodrow Wilson at the now RKO-Keith Theater in that house last night.

Mrs. Wilson was prevented from being present by a previous engagement which necessitated her absence from the city.

Following the dedicatory exercises, a brief screen bill was put on featuring Floyd Gibbons' first release in his "Tmirteen Supreme Thrills of History," a short reel subject entitled "Woodrow Wilson's Great Decision."

This is a bona fide appeal for help! Late evening at about the time this screed was approaching the process of incubation, appeal was made to this department for detailed information concerning the life and works of Farina, the fabulous pickaninny of the Hal Roach 'Our Gang" comedies—up to the time that he became too obviously an adolescent male to masquerade further as a diminutive female, servink as a perpetual symbol of tragedy and defeat.

In my files there was nothing pertaining to this youngster's forebears or claim to distinction that might have been of help in the emergency. Rudy Berger, of M-G-M, was as sterile as I in the matter of the low down on this ebony comedian; so was Colby Harriman, managing director of the Loew interests in this city, although he was able to provide detailed information regarding King Tut and other antecedents of Farina in the public eye.

Now, how much might you know about Farina? What is his real name? How old is he? What is he doing at the moment? Upon what instrument was he supposed to carve out a concert for himself? And what, and what, and what?

I dare you!

And in case you happened to be the other one who read yesterday's review of "Peter Flies High," at the National, the word that came out "expiating" should have been—and, of course, you guessed it—"expatiating." Which only goes to show that somebody doesn't know where he is "at," or where "at" ought to be.

The growing season—apropos of onthing whatever—I take it, is about over. Or are you still having the grass cut and the lawn sprinkled?

The women indignantly deny the charge, declaring the principals want to find places for male relatives.

reported that the disturbance from the Caribbean had passed over the Yucatan Peninsula and emerged on the Campeche Coast. The wind is still blowing strong, the report said, and shipping has been warned.

Woodbury, N. J., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Giles Russell Taggart, American Consul at Belize, British Honduras, whose death was reported today, lived in Woodbury 20 years ago, when he was appointed to the diplomatic service through Representative Henry S. Loudenslager, of New Jersey. He was born at Clarksboro, near here, and was a student at the University of Pennsylvania and Princeton University. He was an attorney for the Department of Commerce and Labor and a newspaper writer until 1912 when he entered the diplomatic service. He was married.

Belize, British Honduras, Sept. 15 (A.P.) (Via Pan-American Radio).—The death toll from hurricane in Belize was raised today as rehabilitation workers found 150 additional bodies under the wreckage of the Catholic Church.

Authorities estimated the number of bodies recovered to date at 850, saying the total probably would be increased when ruins in outlying sections are searched.

Immediately after searchers, digging in the ruins of the Catholic Church, found the bodies, the wreckage was burned.

The bodies were taken to the huge funeral pyres in the center of the city and cremated.

None of the bodies were identified and no ceremonies attended the cremation.

A shore patrol from the steamer Sacramento, in the harbor, was put to work today rebuilding bridges washed out by last week's storm and generally aiding in the rehabilitation work.

REAR ADM. LEUTZE DEAD IN NEW YORK

Capital, Commanded the Retired Officer, Resident of Monitor at Manila.

Rear Admiral Eugene H. C. Leutze, U. S. Navy, retired, who once commanded the Washington Navy Yard and was superintendent of the Naval Gun factory here in 1906, died yesterday in New York City. He was 83 years old.

Admiral Leutze was the son of the famous historical painted, Emanuel Leutze, who painted "Washington Crossing the Delaware and "Westward Ho," paintings which now hang in the Capitol.

Because his father voluntarily relinquished the sum of $10,000, owing him for the "Westward Ho" painting, President Lincoln appointed his son to the Naval Academy. He was at the Naval Academy during the Civil War and volunteered for active service.

After service in the Civil War, he was associated in the surveying of Nicaragua and the Isthmus of Panama. After serving as head of the department of modern languages at the Naval Academy from 1887 to 1890, he was assigned to the naval gun factory here as assistant superintendent from 1893 to 1896.

He commanded the U. S. Monitor Monterey when that vessel was ordered from San Francisco to the relief of Admiral Dewey in Manila Bay and he was present at the surrender of Manila.

He was superintendent of the Naval Gun Factory here from 1900 to 1902 and then commanded the battleship Maine for two years. He commanded the Navy Yard here and was again made superintendent of the Naval Gun Factory here in 1908.

In 1909 he was retired, having reached the age limit. He was made a rear admiral in 1907. After his retirement he lived in Washington. He lived with his son since 1930. He was a member of the Loyal Legion, the Metropolitan Club, the Chevy Chase Club and the New York Yacht Club.

He is survived by two children, Capt. T. W. Leutze, U. S. Navy, and a daughter, Mrs. G. J. Rowcliff, wife of Capt. Rowcliff, U. S. Navy.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 tomorrow morning from Joseph Gawler's Sons funeral chapel. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

UNIVERSITY CREATES STUDENT LOAN BODY

George Washington Action in Line With Request to Aid Jobless.

Steps to enable students who are economically pressed to continue their education this year, in response to appeals for cooperation by the President's organization on unemployment relief, were announced yesterday by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University.

Creation of a special committee on student loans and employment, and the setting aside of a loan fund to be made available at once to students who must have aid if they are to continue their studies, are the means taken by the university to comply with an appeal sent out by Fred C. Croxton, assistant director of the President's organization.

Prof. Warren Reed West was named chairman of the university's committee on student loans and employment. Assisting him will be the dean of the junior college Henry Grattan Doyle; the comptroller of the university, George Wendell Holmes; the registrar, Fred Everett Nessell; the director of women's personnel guidance, Mrs. Vinnie G. Barrows; the employment secretary of the university, Dorothy Poor, and Profs. Anna Pearl Cooper and Saul Chesterfield Oppenheim.

"The university is bending every effort to make it possible for students to continue their academic training during the coming year," Dr. Marvin wrote Mr. Croxton, who is a graduate of George Washington. "Additional measures will be adopted after further consideration by the committee."

Chain-Store Heir Secretly Married

George Hartford Wedding Revealed; Mother Sued by "Protectoress."

Covington, Va., Sept. 15 (U.P.).—Marriage of George Huntington Hartford, 2d, whose mother denied she hired a Boston girl to protect him from a Broadway enchantress, was revealed here today. The Rev. James Couser, pastor of the Covington Presbyterian Church, announced he married Hartford to Mary Elizabeth Epling, of Welch, W. Va., April 18. He recognized a newspaper picture of the youth.

Olin J. Payne, clerk of Circuit Court here, said his office issued a marriage license to the couple, and kept the matter secret at Hartford's request.

The bridegroom, a sophomore at Harvard University, has been called the wealthiest college boy in the world. He is expected some day to inherit $200,000,000 from the estate of his father, who founded the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. Miss Mildred King, graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, has filed suit for $100,000 against the youth's mother, charging she was engaged to protect young Hartford and received no pay for her services.

Maryland Women Reject Pamphlet

Paper Depicts Hoover as Twentieth Century Washington.

Baltimore, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A pamphlet depicting President Hoover as a twentieth century George Washington, published by the General Federation of Women's Clubs as a program for the Washington bicentennial celebration next year, was repudiated today by the executive board of the Maryland Federation.

By a vote of 30 to 4, with 4 not voting, the board decided that the pamphlet should be eliminated from the State program for the observance of the bicentennial.

Lithographs of the first President and of President Hoover appear side by side on the pamphlet's cover.

Loretta Young Is Divorced From Grant Withers, Actor

Loretta Young (left) yesterday won a divorce from Grant Withers on a charge of nonsupport. She eloped with him in January, 1930. Her mother threatened annulment action, but it was never taken.

Nonsupport Charged to Husband; Alimony Not Sought.

Los Angeles, Sept. 14 (A.P.).—Loretta Young, young film star, was granted a divorce here today from Grant Withers, motion-picture actor.

"When we were first married he bought me a dress," the actress testified. "It cost about $100. He bought some lingerie later, but he charged it and in the end I paid for it."

"Did he supply you with food?" her attorney asked.

"Not after the first three months." Withers was "able-bodied," but failed to support her, she said.

Miss Young and her actor husband eloped by airplane to Yuma, Ariz., and were married January 26, 1930. Mrs. Gladys R. Belzer, her mother, threatened annulment action for a time, but it was never taken.

"I want to tell you I have seen your work in motion pictures and have enjoyed it very much," beamed Superior Judge Henry R. Willis, as he signed the decree. A property settlement provided neither Withers nor Miss Young should seek alimony from the other.

During the hearing it was disclosed that deputy sheriffs were seeking Withers on a charge of nonsupport. The actor, they were informed is "somewhere in the East."

AVERAGE MOTORISTS MASTER NEW TURN DURING FIRST DAY

so he plunged into the intersection bubbling over with life and virility.

Bystanders started to snicker as the youth pulled over to the right, stopped and prepared to make the rotary turn. The young man knew he was attracting attention. He looked around and saw a woman driver who approached the intersection behind him make the turn correctly. A moment of puzzlement. Another driver, a man, followed the woman around, making the new turn deftly. The young man suddenly comprehended, looked sheepish and did not turn at all. He went on to the next intersection.

The writer wanted to talk to him about grandmothers and up-to-dateness.

* * * *

Next came the type of driver who probably rates as average. He seemed to be fairly confident of his own ability to make the turn correctly. Yet he hesitated, apparently in distrust of what the others were going to do. He swung to the left properly, moving very slowly. A group of pedestrians were in his path on the crosswalk. He smiled and waved them across. They smiled back, stopped, and let him pass. Everyone, for the most part, was being good-natured about it. One touch of new traffic regulation had made the whole city kin—and friendly.

* * * *

The excessively timid driver found himself making a modified rotary turn. He got into the intersection on the green light and in the proper lane. He simply could not bring himself to cross that stream of through traffic. He would make up his mind to do so. Then across the intersection would come another car, traveling straight ahead. Again, the timid driver waited. Finally, the traffic light changed, showing green on the thououghfare into which he desired to turn. He moved then. The audience did not know whether to laugh at, or feel sorry for, the central figure of the sketch.

* * * *

Then, there was the villain of the piece. Everyone knows him. He is the driver who either forgets others also want to use the streets or ignores that fact. Yesterday's drama found him playing a sorry, unhappy role. His first appearance was at a fairly busy intersection and he clearly did not know the right-of-way rule. A woman had begun to make a left turn as he approached the crosswalk at a good speed. She went on, having the right-of-way. So did the villain—until he saw he had to stop. He applied his brakes and his car stopped with a series of loud screeches and squeals.

The woman smiled. The villain glared. The crowd chuckled its pleasure.

This same trick at other intersections left the bullying type of driver in an even less comfortable position. He did not stop soon enough at times. The result was locked bumpers or tangled fenders.

Those who helped with the untangling process accompanied their pulling and hauling with lectures on the new right-of-way rule, and the wisdom of caution and courtesy. The villain may learn.

* * * *

Those average men and women motorists who took the newspaper descriptions of the new turn and studied them carefully showed up excellently at one of the main outlying intersection. Traffic was heavy, but going mostly in one direction. The left turn stream had no conflict with another one going through.

It was like a well rehearsed dance. The cars approached the intersection two abreast with those in the inner lane intending to turn left. As the two lines reached the crosswalk, the one broke to the left, the other proceeded straight ahead. No hesitation. No uncertainty. Everyone knew what to do and did it.

* * * *

On the whole, it was a huge and moving spectacle. And, in the writer's opinion the stellar role was played by the women. In not a single scene did he see one of them make a mistake. On the contrary, they showed confidence and intelligence in executing the new turn—the results of what clearly had been real study of it.

Wholesale Fish Deaths Have Officials Baffled

(Associated Press).

The Vixen Sea, which sometimes swallows ships and leaves neither spar nor water barrel, is being credited here with another mystery.

Tons of fish were found dead on top of waters on Nantucket Shoals, and Bureau of Fisheries officials say they cannot explain it.

The fish were not diseased and Navy bombing practice in New England waters this year was said by the Navy Department to have been conducted westward of Narrangansett, R. I., some distance from the fish graveyard.

27 Hope to Share Wendel Millions

26 in Maryland and Virginia Selected in Attack on $100,000,000 Will.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—One man from Minneapolis and 26 people from Maryland and Virginia may share in the estate, estimated as high as $100,000,000, left by Ella Wendel, last of two sisters who for all their wealth lived a recluse life in the mansion at Thirty-ninth street and Fifth avenue.

From hundreds of claimants, some of whose claims have been proven fraudulent, Arthur Garfield Hays, chief of counsel for the Wendel kin, who hope to break the will, has selected 27 as having proper claim to kinship. The legal fight will be begun as soon as the temporary administrators present the will for probate.

The Minneapolis man is Niels Jacob Wendel, a 76-year-old retired mail carrier. All the claimants are elderly and none wealthy. Miss Wendel's grandmother, who was Henrietta Stansbury, furnishes the point of contact between the Maryland and Virginia kinfolk and the Wendel fortune which, unless the will should be broken, goes principally to two divinity schools, two hospitals and an orphanage.

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Sept. 15.—Douglass Gray, white, 40, who lives near Philomont, this county, is in the Leesburg Jail and Russell Brooks, 24, white, and of this county, is in the Loudoun Hospital with several stabs, presumably from a pocket knife, in the chest and one in the abdomen as the result of a fight over a girl which took place yesterday afternoon at the home of Richard Reed, near Purcellville.

According to Sheriff E. S. Adrian, who made the arrest, Brooks was brought to the hospital by Harry Waters, of Takoma Park, another member of the party at Reed's. Four hours later Gray was arrested at Silcott Springs. He will remain in jail until a hearing is held.

franchise, to private retailers. But Gov. Roosevelt has added the important proviso that if it proves impossible to negotiate satisfactory agreements, as to rates and operating features, with private contractors, the State itself should go into the distribution field and furnish the power to counties and municipalities.

Gov. Ritchie in his speech yesterday said:

"The national policy, it seems to me, must not be Government ownership * * * Our political ideal always has been to encourage private enterprise, to bestow upon it the earned rewards of brain and labor, and to keep open the door of opportunity."

Virginians Advance In U. S. Rifle Rank

National Guardsmen Move Up 66 "Notches" in Ohio Matches.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 15.—At the national rifle matches just completed at Camp Perry, Ohio, Virginia's National Guard teams placed twenty-third among 110 units from all sections of the country and from all branches of the service.

This is the highest rank this State's team has ever earned, and guard officers of both regiments are highly elated. Last year the aggregation from the Old Dominion placed eighty-ninth, and a jump of sixty-six "notches" in national competition is declared to be a cause for just satisfaction.

This years' team from Virginia was headed by Maj. H. B. Jordan, of Bedford, team captain; Capt. George T. Hopkins, of Richmond, was range officer, and Staff Sergt. Thomas J. B. Lohr, of Staunton, coach.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S OFFICE TAKEN IN QUIZ

court," Hunt declared, "would perpetuate therein the scandalous and libelous charges intended in the report, the odium of which this petitioner would be obliged to bear without having the opportunity to meet his accusers and reply to their attacks in the tribunal selected by them to record their charges."

In a statement to the press simultaneous with the filing of the petition, Henry I Quinn, counsel for Inspector Stoll, who also was counsel for Capt. Edward Kelly and Inspector W. S. Shelby when they were rebuked by a grand jury in connection with the McPherson case in 1929, denied "that we will do anything to block or impede an investigation by any board appointed by the Commissioners."

Seek to Condemn Action.

"We have taken this step because we feel that it is high time that illegal reports by the grand juries in this District be condemned, and that grand jurors be given to understand that their duty is to indict or ignore."

Mr. Jacobson, in a similar statement, said:

"It is believed that this is the proper time to put the present grand jury and every other grand jury on notice that when the motives and conduct of the individual are impugned and he held to reprobation without an opportunity to defend or protect his reputation, that such grand juries shall have a healthy regard for the responsibility of its utterances, and to restrain false, exaggerated and unfounded statements."

He declared that Hunt "has made every effort to obtain a trial without avail, and he still welcomes the opportunity to face his accusers before any fair and impartial trial board."

The same grand jury which ten days ago delivered a scathing arraignment of the police in a report accompanying the indictment of five men in the department today will hear the Department of Justice accusations against five times that number of policemen.

Evidence turned over to District Attorney Leo A. Rover by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, involves 25 policemen from various precincts, in some 50 cases of alleged assault, it was indicated last night.

Approximately 24 alleged victims of beatings at the hands of police have been subpenaed to appear before the jury, among a long list of witnesses called. As in the earlier "brutality" cases, which resulted from The Post's expose of the beating of James Henry Harker, District Attorney Rover himself will present the evidence.

Quick Action Expected.

Despite the long list of witnesses called, if the same expedition accompanies the presentation as attended earlier "third degree" hearings, all 50 cases will be disposed of by the end of the week.

It was not known last night whether indictments will be sought in each of the cases on which evidence has been completed, but it appeared imminent that a larger number of indictments will result.

Many of the cases are understood to be weaker than the so-called "ironclad" presentations made to the jury early this month; some in all probability will be thrown out by the statute of limitations; and it is expected that a number will be ignored.

The Justice Department now has virtually wound up its third degree investigations, with the exception of a few uncompleted cases, and it was indicated that a formal report to the District Commissioners, covering the whole scope of the inquiry, will be made before the investigation is closed.

Reports have been current at the courthouse that the grand jury, not to be intimidated by petitions filed yesterday demanding that their last special report be expunged from the record, is planning another report in connection with its next list of indictments.

Trial Board Not Named.

Commissioner Luther C. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, last night said it may be three or four more days before the commission announces appointments to the special trial board of civilians that will hear the Staples case, if an investigating board of five attorneys, already appointed, considers it advisable.

Most of the five civic heads consulted Monday submitted nominations to the board yesterday, as requested, but Dr. Reichelderfer said he thought it advisable not to disclose their names.

Henry P. Blair, chairman of the board of five lawyers named by the Commissioners, said he will call his group together either tomorrow or Friday to organize. Their investigation will get under way soon after, he indicated.

U. S. Court Bars Stockingless Girls

Coatless Boys and Men Also Banned as Visitors at Martinsburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 15.—United States Court for the Northern District of West Virginia, with Judge W. E. Baker, of Elkins, presiding, opened what promises to be a record three-week term here today. The grand jury went into session during the afternoon. Approximately 100 cases are to be given the grand jury.

A number of high school boys and girls, planning to observe court in action as part of their class in democracy work, found themselves barred from the courtroom because their attire was not sufficiently complete to meet court requirements. Some of the boys appeared coatless and in short sleeves, and some of the girls stockingless.

The rule against informal dress has been in force here in Judge Baker's court for some years. Judge Baker also found it necessary to bar some men who came in shirt sleeves this morning. He also ordered strict enforcemetnt of a rule against reading of papers in the courtroom.

Upturn Is Noted In Virginia Trade

Norfolk and Richmond Each Shown With 6,000 Jobless.

(Associated Press.)

An optimistic turn in several phases of business in Virginia was noted in the report of the Department of Commerce's Norfolk office to Fred C. Croxton, director of the President's unemployment relief organization.

However, the report said the estimated number of unemployed in Norfolk was approximately 6,000, with 6,000 more in Richmond and 2,500 in Roanoke.

An extra 100 men were employed in the Roanoke area as peach gatherers, the report showed. One railroad reported a marked increase in car loading for August, 1931, at Norfolk, as compared with last August.

Roanoke building permits last week totaled $40,000, and work on the new Federal building and two hotel additions are nearing completion. While the number of building permits issued in Norfolk during June, July and August this year was greater than for the corresponding period in 1930, the amount involved in new construction showed a decrease of $195,425.

POLITICS AND THE BONUS.

Representatives of the American Legion in Washington received some straight-from-the-shoulder talk from Maj. Gen. Harbord when he advised them in plain soldier fashion to abandon the idea of demanding advance payment from the next Congress of the remainder of the bonus, amounting to $2,000,000,000. From the number of instructed delegations that will go to the national convention of the Legion in Detroit it now seems probable that the meeting will go on record as favoring the payment. It will be a mistake.

Such action at this time will be a blow to the confidence and respect in which the Legion is held. It will result in a loss of prestige and faith in the judgment, political and moral, of a great organization that should rise above special and personal interests at this time. There are 1,000,000 members of the Legion. In addition there are about 3,000,000 more veterans. Most of them are able-bodied men in the prime of life. For those who are sick or disabled the Government is generously providing. Of the remainder, from the very nature of the men who compose the 90 per cent or more of the veterans, fewer are unemployed, or in need of direct financial assistance, than in any like number that could be selected from the general population.

The Legion, originally formed to help its disabled members, is fast being transformed into a political organization, and if for no other reason than that it would be bad politics, it should refrain from pressing the demand for liquidation of the balance of the adjusted compensation now. Congress is a much more experienced political body than the Legion. It will defeat a bill for the payment of the second half of the bonus next winter. Why? For the same reason that it passed the bonus last winter—it was considered good politics at the last session; it would be a bad political move under present conditions.

The additional bonus would go to more than 3,000,000 men who are not only perfectly well, but at work. When there are more than twice that many persons in the United States believed to be without work and in actual need of help from some source, Congress will not be so blind as to favor the strong and self-supporting veterans at the expense of workers whose income has been stopped by the business depression. There was sufficient resentment at the action taken by the last Congress. With a worse situation at present popular indignation would be thoroughly aroused over a repetition that contemplated doubling the previous bonus appropriation. If the Legion can not see this, Congress will certainly see it before it meets in December. If the humanitarian arguments and a sense of equal justice for Americans should not appeal to senators and representatives, political expediency will still cause them to stand by the unemployed as against the employed veterans.

The only conceivable way in which Congress could pass the bonus payment would be to include it in a very much larger appropriation destined for general distribution—in short, a general dole. That this country is opposed to such a disastrous step there can be no doubt. By the time Congress meets it will be evident that the plans now being perfected will be ample to care for all needy and unemployed Americans during the winter. To attempt, in addition to this, to single out a select list of Americans representing 2 per cent of the population for special favor in a time like this would be an act of political folly which Congress will avoid, notwithstanding its desire to placate the veterans.

"BALLOON" GOLF DOOMED.

Clouds of gloom that have darkened the horizon for nine months suddenly vanished out of the sky yesterday. The depression was forgotten; the stock market tobogganed to new low levels almost unnoticed; world peace, disarmament, tariffs, war debts, the Farm Board, deficits, even baseball were pushed into the discard while mankind contemplated the Waterloo of the "balloon" golf ball.

The United States Golf Association has spoken. The accursed pellet that slices in the wind, that drops short of a respectable driving distance, and that bounces off the green, is no more. It is the golfer's day of rejoicing. Perhaps in future ages golfers of every State will join in celebrating the event, as Frenchmen annually observe the fall of the Bastille.

To the average golfer the fact that the association has not yet laid down specifications for the new ball is a matter of little consequence. It is enough to know that the cause of his indigestion and the profanity that has seeped into his vocabulary during the last nine months has been removed. Again there is hope for straight drives and sane putting. Golf takes on a new spirit. "Balloonism" with all its attendant horrors will pass forever from the fairways. Of course, the inventive minds of golfers must be turned to the discovery of new alibis, but even that does not mitigate the satisfaction that is derived from these gladsome tidings.

But the shrewd U. S. G. A. is not going to reinstate the old type of globule that sinks deep into the grass. It is not the size of the balloon ball that brought upon it the wrath of ten million turf diggers. Hence, only the weight of the official pellet will be changed.

Professionals may be somewhat disturbed at these frequent meddlings with standard size and weight. A golf pill is eccentric enough under any conditions. But their protest, if they make any, will be drowned out by the vociferous demands of the duffer. The balloon ball was adopted for the special benefit of the average golfer. Now it must be changed to prevent a run on neurological sanitariums.

The royal and ancient game can not be allowed to sink into disrepute. This time the manufacturers will devise a perfect ball. Every dub who has ever chopped up a fairway or swung a club ravenously at the air will want to try again. And so the merry struggle goes on. But there is little danger that the subtle sponsors of this venerable sport will allow a perfect ball to be developed or that golfers would recognize it if such a miracle should come to pass.

TARIFFS AND INDUSTRIES.

Great Britain is apparently about to adopt a general tariff. The movement of Britain toward a protective policy is of special interest in the United States, not only because it would sound the death knell of free trade in this economic period, but because it would bring about far-reaching changes in those American industries that are now supplying Britain with the necessities of life.

It is evident that American industrialists expect Britain to adopt a tariff policy. More than 100 manufacturers in this country who now export goods to the United Kingdom have inquired of the American Chamber of Commerce in London as to the advisability of establishing branch plants to avoid payment of the proposed British tariff. Acquisition of branch plants of great American industries is one of the advantages which the Conservatives in Britain hope to gain through imposition of customs duties.

Britain must have an industrial revival if that country is to survive as one of the great modern nations. During the first eight months of this year Britain's imports were valued at $2,700,000,000, compared with exports of only $1,500,000,000, an adverse balance of trade amounting to $1,200,000,000. It is absurd to suppose that Britain could continue on this basis without a collapse. No country can support its population in idleness and import so large a percentage of the necessities of life from other nations.

It may be expected, however, that the Democrats will see in the inquiries of American industrialists, as to the prospects for branch factories in England, further evidence of the "destruction of American foreign trade by the Smoot-Hawley act." As a matter of fact, Britain is talking of doing only what every other large commercial country has already accomplished. Modern nations have found it necessary to protect their own producers against foreign competition and to encourage the location of factories within their borders by raising tariffs.

But how can it be said that this tendency is detrimental to the United States? For many years this country has maintained tariff barriers against cheap foreign products. Consequently many foreign industrialists who wished to sell their wares to Americans have been forced to establish plants in this country and use American labor and materials. This is a case in which workingmen are direct beneficiaries of the tariff.

Much is said about the tariff driving American factories abroad, but almost no attention is given to the factories that it brings to this country. The field for branch factories abroad is limited because of the narrow markets for American specialties. Foreign plants that locate in the United States to escape payment of tariffs have access to the greatest market in the world.

Statistics show that foreign capital is taking advantage of this opportunity. It is estimated that $4,700,000,000 in foreign capital is invested in the United States. A recent survey by the Department of Commerce brought forth the interesting conclusion that more foreign capital is invested in the United States than in any other country in the world, not excepting India or Canada. Foreign investments here are greater than at any previous time in history.

Foreign industries would not have moved here, where they must use highly-paid American labor, if they could have remained abroad and sent cheap-labor goods into the United States. This constructive phase of tariff protection is too frequently neglected. It is, nevertheless, an asset that must be weighed in considering the benefits that have accrued to American labor through the tariff.

AMERICAN SEAMANSHIP.

The Pacific hurricane that wrecked the S. S. Colombia on the coast of Lower California last week provided another test of the bravery and efficiency of American officers and crews. The manner in which they faced this crisis entitles them to an honored place on the long list of heroes of the sea. Driven ashore before wind and tide that no ship could resist, the Colombia was helpless and its passengers in danger. All aboard were obliged to take to the lifeboats. They were picked up by the United Fruit steamer San Mateo and then transferred to the steamer La Perla, of the same line.

This simple recital of the facts carries little idea of the hazardous feats accomplished during that terrible night of shipwreck and storm. A concise report of the rescue is contained in the message of gratitude telegraphed by President Edward T. Ford, of the Panama Mail Steamship Co., owner of the ill-fated Colombia, to Victor C. Cutter, president of the United Fruit Co. Mr. Ford said:

> Accept our heartiest thanks for the prompt response and splendid seamanship with which the United Fruit steamer, San Mateo, rescued from the boats all the passengers and crew of the S. S. Colombia, stranded off Point Tosca, Lower California, Saturday night. The prompt establishment of communication, the disembarcation of 114 passengers and 120 officers and crew into the boats during a severe storm after midnight and the rescue of all, without loss of life or injury and their subsequent transfer to your steamer, La Perla, on which they are proceeding safely to their destination in California, is, in our opinion, convincing evidence of the efficient seamanship of the American merchant marine. Please extend to the masters, officers and crews of your ships our grateful appreciation.

President Cutter in reply said that all available reports paid high tribute to the magnificent work of the officers and crew of the Colombia while abandoning the ship, and that the launching of the boats without loss of life or injury was an outstanding achievement in American seamanship. The incident adds one more testimonial to the bravery, discipline and competence of American seamen. While the passengers were entering the lifeboats a wireless from the deck of the Colombia sent by a passenger said: "There is no panic, no hysteria to be noted. This was averted by the common sense on the part of the officers and by their precise and stern orders. Never has it been our lot to see men show a finer example of coolness, and this applies to both officers and men."

Suffice it to say in this connection that the merchant marine act requires that not less than 50 per cent of the crews in every department of all mail-contract ships shall be American citizens.

SPEED

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Speed in flying is still the greatest challenge to aeronautical engineers. This is illustrated in the fact that even without the usual spur of international competition—except for records—Flight Lieut. G. H. Stainforth attained a speed of 388.67 miles an hour on his best run over a 3-kilometer straightaway course at Calshot, England, while setting a world record of 379.05 miles for an average of four runs. This came after Flight Lieut. Bellini, of Italy, was reported unofficially to have reached a still higher speed in an ill-fated speed trial on Lake Garda.

Lieut. Stainforth's mark was set in connection with Great Britain's uncontested flights for retention, and, in fact, permanent possession, of the Schneider Trophy. The claim was clinched officially by Flight Lieut. J. H. Boothman, who covered a 350-kilometer course for a record of 340.08 miles per hour. The stimulus of the Schneider competition thus has carried speed records for marine aviation far beyond the marks set for land planes, though the latter have accomplished what to most persons would be the very satisfactory speed of 286 miles per hour. Notwithstanding that the Schneider Trophy is to remain in England, it may confidently be forecast that the pursuit of speed records will continue.

This concentration on speed is no idle sporting proposition, no question of thrill seeking. The airplane justifies its existence only by the things which make it superior to other methods of transportation. Speed is its great advantage. Speed has always been the governing factor in improving transportation.

Airplane travel as commercially practiced is made up of several elements. A person plans to leave a certain spot in his home city, for instance, and go to another definite location in another city. Before he can fly he must get from his city location to the airport. After having flown, he must get from the second airport to his destination in that city. Automobiles and other ordinary surface means must be employed, and these have their own speed limitations, which in the total effect considerably offset the speed gained by the actual flight.

In the case of the average airport, located some distance from town in order to get an adequate landing area, it takes from one-half to three-quarters of an hour to reach the field from the city. The same thing occurs on the other end, making a total of at least one hour. Adding this to a trip which in air time takes two hours gives a total of three hours. If the distance is, say, 210 miles, then the average speed of a plane of 105 miles an hour is, in effect, cut to 70 miles an hour. This is but little faster than a crack train.

One way to shorten air travel time obviously is in the air link itself, since the ground links are comparatively fixed. This means much faster airplanes, since aviation must prove itself so superior to other means that it will automatically get a volume of business. Hence progressive engineers seek transport ships which will cruise at 200 miles an hour.

If the flight of 210 miles used as an example above were to be made with a 200-miles-an-hour plane, and the hour for ground transportation added, one would have a total time for the trip of about two hours, making an average from point to point of 100 miles an hour. This speed is definitely so much above existing methods as to make it very desirable.

To achieve this in transport flying 400 miles an hour is needed in special test races, since commercial practice can be usually only about half as fast as the pace of special speed machines. The lessons learned from these latter are the great contributions to the design of big transport planes. Thus must aviation continue its pursuit of speed.

Extravagance in Congress.

Minneapolis Journal.

The Hoover administration's borrowing of money to balance the budget is all wrong, says Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, who would like to succeed Mr. Hoover in the White House.

Such drastic fiscal measures for the balancing of the budget were made imperative by the activities of a Congress that insisted upon appropriating for Federal expenditure sums greater than the expected Federal income, in the face of warnings that a deficit inevitably would result.

Congress was afraid to hold down expenses lest it displease voters. The same Congress was afraid to expand the tax base to care for the new expenditures, lest it might displease other voters.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE OUTSTANDING DAY.

I was that moment done with care.
The day had brought a brief release
From all the petty ills men bear
Which rob their little worlds of peace.

It seemed to be that life was kind
To grant to me so fair a day.
No doubt to face; no fault to find;
No wishing something wrong away.

And then I heard my neighbor cry
And stepping through my happy door
I learned that my untroubled sky
For him with grief was clouded o'er.

Strange world, though living side by side,
I mark the day as calm and fair;
He, as the day his loved one died
Keeps it on memory's calendar.

When the Wolf Defines Justice, It Consists in Eating the Lamb

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A YOUTH who wished to become like Job, a perfect man in his day and generation, would have great difficulty in finding trustworthy definitions of right and wrong.

He would discover that every horrible example is somewhere classified as a virtue.

If a man is employed to collect accounts and holds out the sum of $20, he is guilty of a breach of trust and is sent to jail. If a banker, being entrusted with millions, wrecks his institution and bankrupts a community, he wears a high hat still.

If a man in town makes a brew that is 6 per cent alcohol, he is an outlaw. If a farmer at the edge of town makes a fruit beverage whose 14 per cent of alcohol would addle a congressman, he remains a good citizen.

If a woman sells herself to escape starvation, she is forever an outcast and the chief of sinners; if she marries a dozen men, one after the other, without other motive than the hope of alimony, her virtue remains untarnished.

If a common man tells a lie, he is a liar; if a statesman says he isn't a candidate, though in truth he aches for the nomination, he is a great and good man still.

If the Russians repudiate bonds, they are unfit to be recognized; if American States do it, the buyer of the bonds deserve to lose for taking such a long chance.

If a criminal is a millionaire gang leader, he tells the court when and how he wishes to be tried; if he is a petty crook without money, he is given the third degree and laughed at when he demands a jury trial.

If a tourist left unpaid grocery bills at home and rides in a fine car bought on the installment plan, he is an important citizen; if he is broke and walks in quest of a job, he is a bum and a dangerous character.

If a Cabinet member takes a bribe of $100,000 to give away public property, he is a criminal and eventually goes to jail; but the man who paid the bribe didn't pay it and goes free.

If a newspaper prints advertisements of a lottery, it is denied the mails; if a broadcasting station advertises all kinds of gambling schemes, it isn't corrupting anybody. And though such stations carefully censor cuss words, they boost the business of charlatans, quacks and fakers.

If Chinese are starving, they get Red Cross aid; if American miners are in the same plight, they get nothing because the bituminous coal mess isn't an act of God.

How can right prevail in a land where morality is defined to please the side that has the most power?

PRO AND CON

Relief for Politicians.

Minneapolis Journal.

New York City has been spending considerable sums on special public works designed to give jobs to the unemployed. These projects are commonly spoken of as relief works, and the pay roll that goes with them is called the relief pay roll.

Recently it has been disclosed that this pay roll's chief use is political. Folk who really need work do not get it. Folk who do not need work get sinecures. For example, one man found drawing pay as a road foreman was shown to be the possessor of real estate worth more than $50,000, and to be otherwise well fixed!

This is just an unusually glaring example of what happens when relief of distress is left to government, and hence necessarily to the tender mercies of politics. With State or Federal unemployment insurance, or with any other variant of the dole, the same thing would happen, not only in New York, but almost anywhere else in the country.

Politics inevitably controls governmental agencies. Politics necessarily has to play favorites. A dollar spent for relief through private channels goes twice as far as a dollar spent for relief through governmental channels.

Birmingham News.

It is logical that Melvin A. Traylor should be boomed for the Democratic presidential nomination, for his eminence as a Democrat and his tremendous ability as a man undoubtedly mark him as presidential timber.

It is natural, too, that the Traylor for President boom should have originated in Texas, although his home for many years has been Chicago, where he is president of one of the country's largest banks and has many other important business connections, for it was in Texas that Mr. Traylor spent his youth and early manhood, and there he attained the first successes in one of the most remarkably successful careers in modern American business. He is a native of Kentucky, and now a resident of Illinois, but Texas claims him as its own, and with ample justification.

As president of the First National Bank of Chicago and as a former president of the American Bankers Association, Mr. Traylor has long been one of the great bankers of America. His is the type of mind that is needed at the political helm of this country today. It is much the same type of mind as that of Owen D. Young.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Advocate of Gold Standard Thinks Silver Should Be Stabilized to Increase Purchasing Power.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As usual after every depression has lashed itself to fury the money question becomes the gist of most of the proposed remedies. In the major depression of 1873 it was greenbackism, and in the election of 1878 the Greenbackers, or those who believed in paper money without anything behind it except the Government, cast a mighty vote. After the panic of 1893 it was free silver, and the free-silver Democrats, under the leadership of Mr. Bryan, cast another mighty vote in 1896.

Now that we have more than $5,000,000,000, or nearly one-half of the world's gold, some people are worried sick for fear gold will be demonetized by some weak nations, like Mexico, for instance, and ruin our investments. A substitute metal or a composite is seriously given valuable space in magazines and financial periodicals.

The writer considers it ridiculous to consider any change in the standard of money. A little common-sense thinking will show what a mountain of labor it would be to revolutionize the world on the subject of what constitutes real money.

But the writer's sympathy is with silver in its fight to regain a foothold as one of the world's great money metals. Silver, not gold, is the circulating medium of the masses. Gold circulates only as so much bullion, but the world has made gold the standard of measurement. We should abide by the decree and concern ourselves only with better methods of stabilizing silver; for if silver is stabilized at a better price than the present it will increase the purchasing power of nearly half the population of the globe, vast hoards of it being hidden away in such countries as China and India.

JEREMIAH JOHNSON.

Correspondent Recalls Extra Mileage Scandal in Congress Exposed by Horace Greeley.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In regard to congressmen who carry on the Federal pay roll their wives, daughters, sisters, cousins and their aunts, I think either the system or the congressmen should be abolished, or both. I know this will be a hard task to accomplish, as Congress would have to pass a bill to abolish the system. A new congressman introduced a bill to abolish the system in the last session. What was the result? He was ostracized by the congressmen and his wife was ostracized by the congressmen's wives.

In 1848, when Horace Greeley was in Congress he made one of the greatest newspaper "hits" when he published in his paper, the New York Tribune, an article headed "Congressional Mileage Expose." He published: First, the name of every congressman; second, actual distance from his residence to Washington; third, distance that he was paid mileage; fourth, excess of mileage received.

This excess came to a sum total of $73,492.60 in the Thirtieth Congress. Excess of miles traveled as claimed was 183,000. With a very few exceptions every congressman claimed mileage by the "circuitous miles" route. One member received $998 for excess miles by the "circuitous miles" instead of the direct route. The reform of the law at that time was defeated, but it bore fruit in later years, as it was changed and the rate of mileage was reduced 50 per cent and "circuitous mileage" was prohibited. At that time Horace Greeley was the most hated and abused man in Congress, and when his time expired he did not run again. H. E. FORD.

Stop Chasing Dollars, Says Student, and Chase Away Depression With Literature, Sports and Art.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his letter of September 11 "Economist" admits that many people can not think, but is he any exception? His statements are mere harangue and agitation to stir up "the masses of the people."

Why blame present conditions on "capitalism?" The world would certainly be a sorry spectacle without capitalism or the customs associated with the general idea of "individualism." Present conditions are in part due to the competitive system, that is, to laws and beliefs of past generations. People must be educated to see real causes and act to control those causes. There are many signs that these things are being attempted, although it takes time to obtain results, and people are slow to profit by the experience of others.

But meanwhile we are not all starving, and farmers could easily raise food enough to feed three times the present population. Shelter is not so difficult to obtain. If people would take more interest in studying good literature, art, music, amateur sports, landscape architecture, physical culture, schools, science, wholesome amusements, religion and social service, instead of chasing dollars and howling for fat jobs, more money to spend and more goods of all kinds (specially as much as somebody else has) the "depression" would assume a much less serious aspect.

VETERANS OF G. A. R. "TAKE" DES MOINES

Enthusiastic Squads Gather Again and Play Songs of War Days.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Drums and fifes that incited charges at Vicksburg and Gettysburg, today united in serenade to 1,200 Civil War veterans attending the sixty-fifth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Before hotels, enthusiastic squads of aged soldiers played once more "Marching Through Georgia" and "Yankee Doodle" with a vim that won the most critical.

The National Association of Civil War Musicians got a big hand. About 30—with the help of auxiliary members—belied the thought that time lessens the musician's art. Winslow J. Fries, of Philadelphia, was a one-man show. Imitating a fife player with an unique sort of whistling, he stole some of the thunder of the Wichita, Kans., band, following it and giving solos.

Day of Reunions.

The day was one of reunions for the veterans. Unofficially there have been many such gatherings since Sunday. An informal meeting brought together George H. Pounder, Fort Atkinson, Wis., and J. W. Castner, Kansas City, Kans., for the first time since Castner's horse was shot down during the Vicksburg fighting. Pounder took Castner upon his mount and cried "Hang on, we'll keep going," and they did through the attack. Then they parted, never to meet until this convention.

Des Moines youth paid its tribute to veterans in ceremonies in the public schools. A number of the veterans recounted their war experiences and were presented with medals.

Two Candidates Mentioned.

Two names were prominent in discussion of candidates for commander in chief, Samuel Town, of Philadelphia, and H. I. Merrill, of Wichita, Kans. The bid of Springfield, Ill., for the 1932 encampment appeared to be gaining in strength among the veterans.

National Chaplain Anna McGrath, of Rochester, N. Y., conducted the ladies of the G. A. R. memorial service, which included a tribute to Past President Genevieve Hager Lane, who died last October.

More than 100 national aids escorted President Kate G. Raynor, and other national officers of the National Women's Relief Corps at the forty-ninth convention of that group.

Good fellowship was the keynote of the joint convention of the Sons of Union Veterans and its auxiliary.

G. A. R. members and auxiliaries bring to about 10,000 the total number of convention visitors.

Among those receiving the highest degree were Harry G. Leslie, of Indiana; Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, of Illinois; Supreme Court Justice John W. Kephart, of Pennsylvania; Rear Admiral Luther E. Gregory, retired, of Washington, and Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, retired, of New Jersey.

GANDHI PUTS DEMAND FOR INDIA'S FREEDOM

ing all the days I live in your midst that that consummation may be reached."

Throughout the eloquent discourse, which some of the Indians said was the greatest of his career, the mahatma stressed the mandate of the last gathering of the All-India Congress at Karachi, which affirmed the goal of complete independence and self-determination.

He called to mind, however, the truce reached at Delhi between himself and Lord Irwin, then viceroy, in which the congress accepted the principles of federation, responsibility at the center, and "safeguards insofar as might be necessary in the interests of India."

Will Discuss Safeguards.

Mr. Gandhi said he would discuss these safeguards with the committee in due course, but he hoped they would not expect him to "dot all the I's and cross all the t's."

In the course of his 45-minute talk he referred frequently to the congress, of which he said he was, "but the poor and humble agent." The congress, he said, had "carried the language of the spinning wheel to 70,000 Indian villages."

"I have come to London to attend the committee and the round table conference absolutely in a spirit of cooperation and to strive to my utmost to find points of agreement," he said.

The masatma again today was clothed in loincloth and shawl. It was somewhat warmer than yesterday and he seemed not to mind the weather so much.

He had with him his vacuum bottle of goat's milk and his straw picnic basket filled with dates, raisins and parched corn. On this fare he lunched in imposing St. James's Palace.

TARIFF ADVOCATED BY BRITISH LIBERAL

and other speakers for their opinion that a tariff would act as a life-saver for British trade.

Mr. Snowden said that if the purpose of a tariff was to stop imports in order to do something to redress the trade balance it would have to be of a prohibitive character.

"No tariff of 25, 30 or 40 per cent could keep out all imports," he asserted. "There can be no such thing as an emergency tariff, as experience has shown that a tariff once introduced lasts for years."

The chancellor said that if an international conference on gold were convened Great Britain would be happy to participate.

Mahatma Gandhi, the Man

of them that made an enduring appeal to his spiritual consciousness was the New Testament. He says of the Sermon on the Mount that it "went straight to my heart on the first reading." Plato and Ruskin had interested him sufficiently to make him embark on partial translations of them into his native language. Thoreau and Mazzini made even more lasting and penetrating dents upon his consciousness.

Influenced by Islam.

A very important and significant influence on Gandhi which is indispensable to a proper understanding of his present role of the arbiter of India's destinies was that of Islam. Gandhi first consciously came in contact with Mohammedans in South Africa. Many of his hosts and friends, associates and comrades, followers and disciples in the twenty years that he spent in South Africa—where he laid the foundations of his public career and tested, as in fire, his political principles in a memorable career of strenuous leadership—which was the prelude to his appearance upon the Indian scene and stage—were Mohammedans.

He studied the Koran and the life of the Prophet and the history of the early leaders who were the teachers and exemplars of the new faith. The character of the Caliph Ali, Gandhi once told me, he greatly admired. Gandhi always has liked the Mohammedans. C. F. Andrews, his friend and biographer, says that Gandhi always has reacted sympathetically to the virility and directness that characterize the Mohammedans. Mohammedans, on their part, seem to like him. It is certainly true that Gandhi today has a larger Mohammedan following in India than any individual Mohammedan leader.

Holds All Religions True.

Gandhi holds that all religions are true, sacred to their respective followers, and entitled to the reverence of all. For himself, in spite of his wide and deep studies in comparative religion, he remains a follower of Hinduism. "My faith (he has said) offers me all that is necessary for my inner development, for it teaches me to pray. But I also pray that everyone else may develop to the fullness of his being in his own religion—that the Christian may become a better Christian and the Mohammedan a better Mohammedan. I am convinced tht God will one day ask us only what we are and what we do, not the name we give to our being and doing." There is a story that Stanley Jones, the veteran American missionary in India, once consulted Gandhi as to the best method by which the Christian missions might be made more influential and effective in their ministry among the Indian people. Gandhi suggested that the Christian missionaries might usefully begin patterning their lives upon that of their Master.

Any formal allegiance apart, the basic spiritual principles of Gandhi's life are two: the constant seeking and unflinching service of truth as one may see it and know it; the positive application of love to all of one's fellow beings at all times, with the corollary of nonviolence in thought, word or deed, even when confronted with the gravest provocation or persecution.

Forgives Ferocious Attack.

About 20 years ago in South Africa when he was carrying on some very delicate and difficult negtiations with the local government for the redress of wrongs and hardships to his people there, a fervid and devoted young follower of his suddenly made a ferocious attack upon him and nearly killed him, under the misapprehension that Gandhi was going to sell out to the enemy. Gandhi was taken to a hospital, and the government agents arrested the assailant. But to the intense disgust of officialdom, when Gandhi recovered consciousness and was asked as a formality to enter a charge against his assailant, he declined. He said he knew the young man very well, and if he had acted as he had done, it was from an excess of zeal and devotion to the cause! "The man will yet be my friend," Gandhi said. The young man's repentance—he was a fiery, war-like person—took the form, so it is said, of his constituting himself Gandhi's personal bodyguard thereafter!

That was when Gandhi was winning his spurs as a young patriot and passive resister. Last April in India, at Karachi, the full-fledged mahatma was confronted by a group of young "Redshirts," Indian Communists, whose truculence and violence was equalled only by their Utopian idealism. They not only charged him with having "betrayed India" by his pact with Lord Irwin, the British viceroy, but there was even an attempted assault on Gandhi by some of the more fanatically zealous of these self-constituted saviors of their country.

Gently, but firmly, Gandhi took them in hand. "You say I have betrayed India," Gandhi began. "I shall not complain if you beat me. I have no bodyguard. God alone keeps vigil over me. Some men think me crazy and a fool because of my love for my enemies, but that is the very foundation of my whole life's work and creed. * * * I have no weapon against you except love." His accusers and assailants melted away in tears and audible sobs. (At least on three occasions during his career Gandhi has been the victim of mob assaults resulting in almost fatal injuries, but never once did he seek to have any form of revenge upon or punishment of his persecutors.)

Tailless Airplane Can Go 97 M.P.H.

Tiny Craft, Standing Only 3 Feet High, Is Being Tested in Berlin.

Berlin, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A little airplane, which stands only three feet high and has no tail, is going through a series of tests at Tempelhof Airdrome.

The ship is named the Hermann Koehl in honor of the Transatlantic flier, who financed its construction under the direction of Alexander Lippisch, the designer. In the air it acts like a glider. The plane has a maximum speed of 97 miles and has climbed more than 14,000 feet.

Driven by a 28-horsepower motor, it takes off and lands in small space and negotiate turns and loops with great ease. According to the designer, the absence of tail cuts wind resistance and reduces weight.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Life—And Success.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD:

Please help me! I am desperate.

I am married to a fine young man of 28 who is refined and everything that a man should be and very much in love with me. However, he has one fault and that is, since the year and one-half that we have been married he has not given me one cent for support.

We are living at his people's home. Our home life is very congenial and from all appearances we are an "ideal couple."

He is not a "go-getter" and though I knew this fact before I married him I thought he would change after he was married. I am not impatient, Miss McDonald, but I feel that I will be one of those working women for the rest of my life without my own home and children, living off of either his salary or his people. I just can't live like that and I don't know what to do. He seems to try to make a success of himself, but by the time he goes after something, some one else has already beaten him to it. There are many men like that, I know, but are they worth struggling along with?

I am still young, have a very good appearance and great ambitions. I have always been successful in anything that I have undertaken and I am trying so hard with him. At times, I feel like I want to give up the struggle and then when he takes me in his arms and kisses me, well * * * I get a ray of hope.

I am considering divorce. He will give it to me. He is like that * * * just an easy, slow-moving man and I do love him.

Please help me! Soon, please.

RUTH.

There is one thing we must sooner or later come to admit and that is that not all men can make a living—any more than all women can make cake. There are men, wonderfully kind, marvelously understanding, unbelievably worth while, who simply can not meet life and snatch a living from her treasure chest. What to do about these countless thousands who simply can not keep up with the procession is a question. Should they be denied the things in life that are other men's rewards? Should women despise them? Shun them? And having married them, divorce them, forsake them?

What is the answer for the man who is gentle, considerate, tender and true, but who is a complete failure in a man's world? A childhood friend of mine married such a man. She lives with him in a battered house, cooks and even washes. A few miles away in her father's home there are fifteen in help. Speaking of her childhood in that home she recently remarked that it was like some bad dream. And her tots are as happy as they are beautiful. And they know daddy's step and daddy's whistle and to them daddy is the greatest man in the world. Their mother believes he is. Sought for her fortune as well as for herself she regards her escape from the average man in her set as a miracle. And the finding of a perfect lover and for her children a perfect father, the most wonderful thing that ever happened. I was as cynical and skeptical as the rest until I saw him soothe the fretting baby. That tiny mite knew the strong, tender hand that pressed away the pain. The face that bent above that baby's face was love incarnate. He is a failure. In his father-in-law's home he looks loutish and hopeless. So he does not go there often. But even his father-in-law has begun to wonder. He spoke of it one day to me. He said, "You know, there are two sides to this business of success. I am a success where money is concerned. But my kids never felt toward me as that guy's kids feel toward him. And look at the way Esther worships him. Her mother never felt that adoration for me. You know, I'm beginning to think he is a success."

And so, the wife must decide when she finds the right arms, but the lack of all that makes one man able to shoulder past another man and beat him to the dollar. Step softly, Ruth!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"VIRGO."

IF September 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:15 a. m. to 9:20 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 3:15 p. m. and from 9:10 p. m. to midnight. The danger hours are from 10 a. m. to noon and from 5 p. m. to 7:05 p. m.

Viewed astrologically, September 16 will be notable for unexpected developments in business affairs and surprises in family matters. You should prepare yourself to take full advantage of the former and school yourself not to be startled by the latter. A very surprising day.

Children born on this September 16 will, as a general rule, have considerable literary ability, and this gift should not be deprecated but encouraged. They will be energetic, ambitious and positive. Their friends will be many; their loves, however, few; their ideals high.

You, if born on September 16, are of a rather serious turn of mind, although not lacking in a sense of humor. You are one of those who think you owe more to life than life owes to you. At times, you are burdened down with the cares and troubles of this existence, which cause you needless worry and anxiety. No matter what you have to do it is always done as though the fate of the universe depends upon it. Work to you is a labor, never a joy. A proper sense of proportion is lacking in your "make-up," and your position in the world is not quite so important as you lead yourself to believe.

Your horoscope says that no great material success awaits you, although in later years and as a result of your thrift you will be comfortably fixed and able to do and to live as you like. Your nature is a deeply affectionate one, but you will never jump into marriage—or out of it, as far as that is concerned—without weighing all the "pros" and "cons." Physical attractiveness will cut very little ice with you. Mind and character will determine the issue. You are not much interested in outdoor sports, but rather crave to be alone with the companionship of a serious book. You are not much of a conversationalist.

Successful people born September 16:

Soloman Joseph Solomon, English painter.

William G. Sproul, former Governor of Pennsylvania.

Samuel Adams, patriot and statesman.

Francis Parkman, author and historian.

Asa S. Bushnell, manufacturer and politician.

James J. Hill, railroad president.

Virginia Solicits Briefs On Traffic Regulation

Richmond, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—William R. Shands, secretary to the governor's commission studying adequate regulation of motor bus and truck traffic, said today that any persons desiring to file briefs with the commission must do so by September 21.

The commission has held two open meetings, one in August and one in September. The last one concluded the opening hearings, and the remainder of the consideration to the problem that will be given by the commission will be within the group.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Redfern combines black and white crepe marocain in a graceful afternoon ensemble.

New York, Sept. 15.

A MERE man—a very nice, modern, handsome husband, wrote me a fan letter the other day! A perplexed and worried one, and one that I'll therefore hurry to answer.

This man wrote: "Do these new styles mean that corsets are coming back? Gosh, I hate corsets!"

Well, if you must be so personal, Mere Man, corsets are back! And if you were here this minute I might let you put your arm around me—all in the interests of my dear public, of course, just to see if you would get hung up on a whalebone, which you wouldn't! For, of course, it's not really corsets that you mean, but your idea of a corset as being a whalebone affair.

But no foolin' now—the point is, corsets are back, yet today whalebones are as scarce as hen's teeth in any of the new corsets. Corsets have never been out, really, except with the 16-year-olds—women know that they aren't at their best without a corset. But what men don't realize is that corsets have gone completely modern. Today's corset accepts the figure and flatters it as is, instead of trying to make it something it never should have been in the first place, like grandmother's corset did.

There are lots of things that account for new corseting—women keeping their figures young and moderately slim by dieting, for instance, instead of constricting. And people admit all of the feminine curves these days, instead of disgusing and flattening them.

Tell your men friends not to worry about corseting coming back—it has never left. And if mere women's figures suit you today, they won't be any different this autumn, even if the clothes put on them might be.

* * * *

Black and white, the ever-popular, was never lovelier, my deahs, than in the graceful afternoon ensemble from Redfern that I have sketched for you today. The black crepe marocain jacket has a softly falling white marocain collar, is lined in white and worn over an interesting tunic frock. This frock has elbow-length sleeves, with white elbow bands; the neckline is draped and tied at one side with white tab-like ends; the upper skirt is formed of curved panels, and there's a simulated plain skirt beneath the tunic.

* * * *

You see, though black and white always sounds smart it isn't at all sure that it is smart, unless you consider lines and details as well as color. But when this color combination is used in a chic and graceful manner, it is one of the best.

* * * *

O-O-O-O-O-H, the pendant illustrated today is one of those perfect things—its modernistic self is expressed in yellow and gray-gold and a jade stone. It hangs on a gray and yellow chain.

* * * *

A white satin collar for sophistication—a white tulle one for gayety—a glass bead 'n' raffeta one for sports! I could go on and on describing the various types of collars and cuffs that are offered in this week's illustrated leaflet! But instead, don't you think you'd better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right off to the Dare department of The Post for this leaflet? Each collar and cuff set means a brand-new costume for you, you know, in these days when collars and cuffs are so extremely important.

Au revoir!

Queen of Holland Opens Parliament

Move to Aid Industry in Time of Stress Is Outlined.

The Hague, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The world economic crisis as it affects the Netherlands was discussed in a speech from the throne when Queen Wilhelmina, with the prince consort and Princess Juliana, opened Parliament today.

The speech announced temporary measures were under consideration to safeguard certain branches of industry regarded as vital to the nation.

"State revenues again are diminishing considerably," said the speech, "and in the future a further decline must be expected. The necessity for maintaining financial equilibrium under these conditions demands extraordinary moderation and a sense of sacrifice."

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

THE STUFF THAT TRICKS ARE MADE OF.

Quite often when the Dummy goes possibilities of the cambined hands, the tricks necessary to complete the contract are not visible to the inexpert eye, although they are there if only a way can be found to make them. Often the honor cards of opponents fall victims to the inexorable march of time, which is, as every player knows, one of the most important elements in the play of a hand at Bridge.

In the finals of the Team-of-Four match for possession of the City of Asbury Park National Challenge Championship Trophy, Mr. P. H. Sims, everywhere known as one of the greatest of Contract players, faced exactly this situation.

Both sides vulnerable. South Dealer.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	2◇(1)	3♠(2)	Pass
4♠(3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—West, even though vulnerable, has a very strong hand, and the two diamond overcall needs no comment.

2—North's assist of spades is shaded, but justified under the bidding. His hand contains 2 honor-tricks, but the distribution is unfitted for play at a trump make. Were it not for the intervening bid, the correct response would have been one notrump, leaving the final determination of the contract to South.

3—South's long trump suit further strengthened by North's Raise decides him to play the hand for game.

West has no particularly desirable lead. His partner's hand is probably very weak, as shown by the bidding of North and South. There is an outside chance that it may contain a King and that Kng might be in the heart suit. If that should prove to be the case, West might be able to utilize one of his small trumps on a third round ruff of hearts and thus quickly find the tricks to set the contract. With this in mind, West opened the Ace of hearts. South's play of the Queen to the first heart made evident that this hope would not materialize, but West had no more desirable continuation than to continue the suit. South won and now proceeded to develop the hand in the only way that gave him a chance to maket he contract. The diamond King of course is a marked loser in view of West's bid. It would be futile to hope to make a trick in that suit by leading a small diamond from Dummy and playing the King. To give up a club trick at once hoping to find the King with East would be equally fatal, as East then would lead through the diamonds and East and West would thus make one heart, two diamonds and one club. The plan of campaign decided upon had behind it the merit that it was the only possible way in which the contract could be made and the further merit of boldness. South proceeded to lead six round of trumps. West followed three times and then was forced to choose discards in the club and diamond suits. After six rounds of clubs each hand contained five cards. The hands were:

West had discarded three diamonds. East had discarded two. It seemed probable that West had held five diamonds originally, although there was a possibility he might have held six. In any event, as neither opponent had discarded a club, South's only chance seemed to rest upon the hope that West's hand originally had contained five diamonds, three spades, three clubs including the King and two hearts. The heart doubleton was fairly apparent, based on the Opening lead. There was a shadow of doubt about the club and diamond holding. Be that as it may, South took his only chance to make his contract. He led the diamond King and West was forced to win. West could see the inevitable coming and led the Queen of diamonds. North now parted with his last heart and East, relieved of the necessity of longer holding the heart Knave, discarded it, but East and West were through. West was now forced to lead a club and the three remaining tricks belonged to South. Had West during the lead of the trumps discarded one club and retained three diamonds, then South would have put him in with the King of clubs and forced him to lead away from the major tenace in diamonds to South's king.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Opening minor suit three-bids are not advisable, but when they are bid must show an absolutely solid trump suit.

Opening major suit three-bids are not attempts to shut out opponents, but are strength showing bids; in fact, near two-bids. They show a powerful trump suit, 3 or 4 honor-tricks and in all at least 8 playing tricks.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

STORING CANNA TUBERS.

Cannas should be cut off as close to the ground as possible, the clumps dug, torn apart and thoroughly dried. If you do not shake them apart they will never dry properly. Many inexperienced growers lose their cannas because they do not understand this step in their care. When quite dry store them in a moderately warm place. Most commercial growers recommend a place where the temperature remains between 40 and 45 degrees.

The old-fashioned common varieties will keep very well in this condition until spring. When storing cannas pack them closely together with the roots up. This in a large measure will prevent them from starting growth and will keep the roots from starting to decay.

The beautiful French cannas, introduced during the last few years and now so very popular (grown for their great gorgeous heads of bloom and wonderfully free-flowering qualities) require the same treatment as do the other varieties, but they will not keep alive dormant until spring as do the common kinds. They require special attention, and if they do not receive it, when spring comes they will be shriveled. They have not the same vitality as do the older varieties.

French cannas must be looked over about the last of February or first of March. As soon as they show the remotest sign of withering, get to work and clean off the roots and plant them in a shallow box. At first give them merely sufficient water to prevent them from shriveling.

As the spring advances, increase the moisture. If you follow this method the plants will be well rooted and in good condition when planting-out time comes, which is usually about June 1. Such plants, when set in permanent locations in the garden, never fail to start at once to push out vigorously under the influence of warm sunshine and early summer rains.

By following these directions it is an easy matter to keep any or all varieties of cannas over the winter. I know from the letters you sent me last spring that a great many cannas were lost because you kept the roots in a place which was not frostproof.

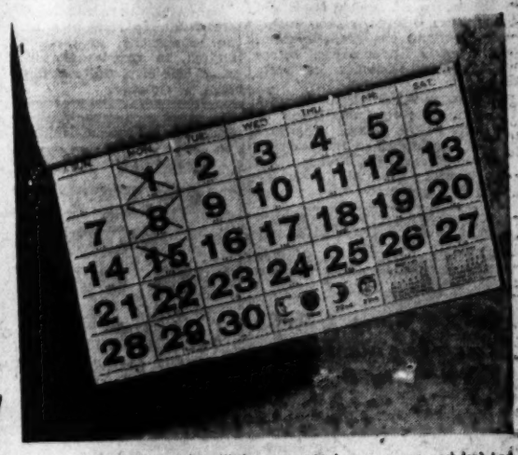
Don't Waste 1248 Days on Washday



Are you one of the women who still throw away 52 days a year—on washday? And you think you're saving money! What false economy! What a quick road to old age!

Free Yourself from Such Slavery! And Save Money, too, with Manhattan's 3-Day, Net Bag Service.

FIGURE IT UP! Fifty-two washdays every year from 21 to 45. Nearly four solid years utterly wasted on washday and its worries. Why? Because you think you're saving money!

Yet you forget that your clothes don't last as long as they would with Manhattan's Net Bag washing. Manhattan uses these soft bags to keep out the wear that wears clothes out. Tests prove the difference.

Each different type of fabric specially laundered. Nothing but pure palm oil soap used. No scrubbing. And hundreds of gallons of soft, filtered rinse water.

Small wonder your clothes come home as fresh and sparkling as when new.

You don't wait four or five days for them either. On the third day, at exactly the hour promised, they're in your hands!

Unusual features, these! But Manhattan is an unusual laundry. Phone today and see for yourself. You'll never go back to home washday again. No one ever does.

IDEAS ARE SELECTED ON CRIME COST CUTS

Pollard's Commission Will Meet Again September 29 to Air Suggestions.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard's special commission on methods of reducing criminal costs today chose 13 of more than 100 suggestions for further study and voted to meet again September 29 to take them up in detail.

Among the suggestions for further study was a proposal to reduce certain offenses of the prohibition law now classed as felonies to the status of misdemeanors, depopulation of jails by such suggested methods as State-wide probationary system and county road camps, and the establishment of a central agency for the collection of fines imposed, particularly under the prohibition laws.

The numerous suggestions considered by the commission in its session today resulted from questionnaires sent out by the chairman of the commission, Comptroller E. R. Combs, to judges, clerks of courts and Commonwealth's attorneys.

Executive in Nature.

The session was executive in nature, and members would not indicate their tentative opinion as to fees, juries and the prohibition laws. It was definitely stated, however, that the commission will endeavor in every way to cut down the State's criminal costs, which now amount to more than $1,000,000 annually.

The proposals selected by the commission for further consideration at its session September 29, when its recommendations will be formulated, are in part as follows:

Substitution of a single scale of fees paid jailers caring for State prisoners, regardless of what county the prisoner comes from, rather than the present sliding scales.

Determination whether, in cases where counties, cities and towns have parallel State laws, it is necessary to try defendants under local ordinances.

Whether Mandatory.

Whether trial justice courts in counties and towns shall be mandatory, and whether they shall result from a single uniform act, or from the half-dozen acts already enacted on the subject.

Some methods for depopulating jails. A State-wide probationary system and county road camps were the principal solutions suggested.

The proposal to allow joint trials in felony cases, where more than one defendant appears in the same indictment. This would cut down all fees, particularly in prohibition cases, where frequently multiple indictments have been obtained.

The question whether the costs of forfeiture cases shall be paid out of proceeds of sales and not by the Commonwealth. This would, if adopted, require prohibition enforcement to largely make its own way.

Maryland Oyster Increase Forecast

Deputy Leader of eStat Fleet Is Expecting Fall in Prices.

Oxford, Md., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A heavy increase in the Eastern Shore oyster harvest was foreseen by Deputy Commander W. J. Haddaway of the State oyster fleet following a survey of Talbot County bars. Market conditions, he said, would be such that a fall in prices likely would result.

"The rocks are in splendid condition in Broad Creek and the Choptank River," said Haddaway, "and they are practically free from mussels. There seem to be indications of a fairly good catch of spat and on Great Bar I found a good supply of oysters. They are small, however, and will not be fit for market before the middle of October or early November.

"At Royalston Island the oysters are larger and some good stock will be taken early in the season. This also is true of the mouth of Harris Creek and Broad Creek. On France Rock in the Choptank there also is considerable young growth."

Fair in Frederick To Open Sept. 22

Bushel of Wheat Will Be Accepted as Admission During Five Days.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Frederick Fair, founded 109 years ago as a two-day cattle show, will open September 22 for five days, with a bushel of wheat good for admission.

Guy K. Motter, secretary of the fair association, took the bushel of wheat idea from the West.

Through the more than a century the fair has been held it has grown from a two-day cattle show to a program of five days, four nights, horse and automobile racing, amusement midway and a pretentious agricultural show, held on a 60-acre tract at the edge of the city. An extra day has been added this year, to be featured by automobile races sanctioned by the American Automobile Association.

Soldiers Win Citations For Averting Explosions

For helping to avert an explosion at Fort Bragg, N. C., on June 4, Capt. Alan L. Campbell, of Owings Mills, Md., and Lieut. Harry C. Dayton, of Port Jefferson, N. Y., were awarded the soldiers' medal yesterday by the War Department.

The citations of Campbell and Dayton described how a fire was started from the muzzle blast of a howitzer and how, with utter disregard of the danger," they removed explosive shells from the midst of the flame. Their work, the citation said, contributed to the saving of Government property and possibly human life.

MARYLAND TOBACCO CROP GOLD HARVEST

Sparse Yield Last Year Has Been Followed by Huge Growth This Year.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—While grain is burned and fed to live stock in the Middle West and cotton growers in the South turn to State Legislatures for relief, Southern Maryland tobacco growers are reaping a harvest of gold.

Following a sparse crop of last year's drought season, a huge yield has been produced by the five-county area near Baltimore and Washington and prices are at the highest level in years.

First-quality leaf has been bringing as high as 55 cents a pound, and the average, including the poor-grade stuff, has held at approximately 30 cents. These are much higher figures than paid in the Carolinas, Virginia, Georgia and Kentucky, the chief producers.

The reason is the domestic demand that has developed for Maryland leaf as a quick-burning tobacco needed in cigarette manufacture. Until the World War this type tobacco came principally from the Orient.

Maryland tobacco, until recent years was considered undesirable and was sought largely by France, Germany, Italy and Holland at low prices. Only a third of the current crop is destined for export. Maryland type tobacco has been found to thrive in but five counties—St. Marys, Calvert, Charles, Prince Georges and Anne Arundel. The growers believe that because of last year's poor crop and the current demand the price will remain high.

The 1930 crop is being brought in hogsheads to the State warehouses at Baltimore as the 1931 crop is harvested, and hauled to barns to be cured, a process of months. New barns are being erected, the first that many old plantations have put up in decades.

Exploding Liquor Stills Blamed in Forest Fires

Chestertown, Md., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—"Exploding stills" is listed as one cause of forest fires on the Eastern Shore by Kenneth J. Seigworth, district State forester for the nine-county area, who has been making an inspection tour.

Within ten years the Department of Forestry hopes to eliminate 50 per cent of the fires of all kinds on the shore, he said. Careless smokers are blamed for 40 per cent of the fires and brush burning by farmers some 30 per cent. Other causes have been found to be blazing cinders from locomotives, sawmill sparks, lumbering operations and lightning, and exploding stills.

Fairmont Doctor Charged in Death

Reckless Driving Is Seen as Virginia Woman Fell From Car.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A coroner's jury this afternoon found that Mrs. Martha Hutchinson, former deputy county clerk at Fairmont, W. Va., was killed Sunday night when she fell from an automobile, driven in a "reckless manner" by Dr. Carl Pierre Andre, also of Fairmont.

Dr. Andre was immediately arraigned before the justice of the peace on a felony complaint charging involuntary manslaughter. Bail was temporarily fixed at $5,000. The verdict was returned after the jury had heard testimony of a mechanic that the right front brake on Dr. Andre's automobile was defective and Andre's own statement to Sheriff Russell Trathen that he was traveling faster than 50 miles an hour when Mrs. Hutchinson fell from the car.

Dr. Andre testified that Mrs. Hutchinson a widow, came to Reno two weeks ago from Fairmont. Previously he is said to have told Sheriff Trathen the woman followed him here so that she could marry him when he obtained a divorce from Dorothea Howard Andre.

Rail Line Opposes New Rate Hearing

Norfolk Southern Holds Cut Already Made Is Justifiable.

(Associated Press.)

The Norfolk Southern Railroad yesterday reiterated its contention for reduced rates, already granted, to meet bus and water competition along the Virginia and North Carolina coasts in asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to refuse a request for reconsideration.

The petition for reopening the case was filed by the Richmond Chamber of Commerce and the Norfolk, Baltimore & Carolina Steamship line, which operates coastal vessels. They charged the new rates would tend to annihilate water transportation along the coast.

The railroad company's brief contended the rates were profitable and denied any intention to cause a rate war. On the other hand, the railroad said the whole purpose of the steamship line's request was to eliminate "the Norfolk Southern as a factor in serving the territory for which its line was built many years ago."

SEND A BILL TO YOUR HEATING SYSTEM

it has sent many a bill TO YOU

IF yours is an old-fashioned heating system, it is making you pay and pay heavily for keeping it. Consider what it costs you—put down everything you have to pay:

TIME to operate it, and to order fuel. Time to do the extra housecleaning a dirty system causes.

LABOR of shoveling coal and removing ashes.

COST of repairs, replacements, and (if you use coal) removal of ashes.

COLDS and other sickness caused by uneven, irregular heat.

SPACE in your basement—wasted if you have a noisy, dirty system, but as useable as any room in the house if you have quiet, clean heating.

These are all actual costs, in addition to fuel costs which your heating system makes you pay.

Now suppose you had automatic gas heat: the only possible cost is the fuel alone—all the extra costs present with the old-fashioned system become savings. You save time, untold hours of it every week. You save actual costs of repairs, replacements, depreciation. You improve the health and well-being of your family. You add another room to your home. You enjoy comfort, convenience, leisurely ease such as you have never known before.

What is all that worth—dollars a day, isn't it? Yet automatic gas heat costs the average Washington family, in a six-room brick row home, only about ten cents a day more for the year than ordinary heat. If you agree that it's worth ten cents to have more time, more room, more comfort, better health, call your heating contractor or gas company now, and get ready to ENJOY the coming winter.

VALUES ON INCREASE AT WOODLAND BEACH

Post Sites Already Worth More Than Present Price of Purchase.

Buy where property is increasing in value rather than where it is standing still or decreasing. That is advice any real estate dealer or banker will give you.

And because that is sound advice, hundreds of Capital residents have purchased lots at Wodland Beach. The Washington Post's summer home development on South River in Maryland.

Because of the fact that many cottages have come into existence at the beach since it was first opened to the public early in the summer; because roads and streets have been cut through and improved; because additional transportation facilities have been furnished since the beach opened and because of other improvements planned in the near future, property at the resort is already valued at more than the price The Post is asking for lots there.

You may buy at Woodland Beach at the rate of $93 per lot, and of this amount only $9 need be paid in cash. A subscription to The Post is the only other requirement, and then the balance may be paid at the rate of $3.50 per month.

Woodland Beach is only 32 miles away and easily accessible for week-end and overnight outings. To reach it take the Defense highway to Camp Parole, turning right on Maryland State highway No. 2 across South River, and then left on Mayo road, which leads directly to the clubhouse on the grounds.

Woman Who Lost Fortune and Position Expires in Michigan.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A 93-year-old woman who lost wealth, social position and health in one of the most sensational murder mysteries Michigan has ever known died at the home of her son near here today.

The woman, Mrs. Sarah I. Tabor, formerly a wealthy and socially prominent resident of Van Buren County, was the central figure in the Maude Tabor Virgo "trunk murder" mystery of fifteen years ago. Her death added another chapter of sorrow to the history of the family which already had known the suicide of Mrs. Florence Tabor Critchlow, sister of Maude Tabor Virgo.

Maude Tabor Virgo, an attractive school teacher, disappeared in 1916. Three years later her body was found in an old trunk beneath a pile of shingles in Mrs. Tabor's home. The mother, then 80 years old, was charged with the slaying of her daughter. She told several stories during and after the trial which ended in a disagreement of the jury.

Man Is Shot in Election; 15 Deputy Sheriffs Held

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Heated contests in an off-year primary today brought Pittsburgh and Allegheny Counties the most turbulent election day in their history, and necessitated the presence of State police to guard against disorders.

An election watcher was wounded in the leg in an argument at one polling place. Police of Homestead, a suburb, arrested fifteen deputy sheriffs after two election watchers there had been placed in jail on charges of violating the election laws. State police were in demand at several places in the county where fights occurred among followers of rival political factions.

Church to Be Base For Tall Building

Memorial to Methodism Is Planned in New York Financial District.

New York, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—The oldest Methodist Church in America is to serve as the structural basis for a nineteen-story office building, to be erected in the downtown financial district as a memorial to Methodism, Dr. Francis Bourne Upham said today.

Dr. Upham has been pastor of the little John Street Methodist Church for the last fifteen years and his trustees have been authorized by the general conference of the church to proceed with plans for the building.

The church will have to be torn down and rebuilt with stronger materials, but it will be reproduced as nearly perfect as possible. Its reproduced walls will serve as the lower stories of the building and on the top it is planned to erect a penthouse chapel, to be known as the Barbara Heck Chapel.

BANK WOMEN TOLD TO BAR INFERIORITY

Mrs. Anne Renshaw Speaks at Institute Dinner Here; 100 Attend.

Bank women would advance more if they would rid themselves of an inferiority complex, Mrs. Anne Tillery Renshaw, of the Anne Tillery Renshaw School of Expression, declared last night at the annual dinner of the women's committee of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Mrs. Renshaw, who has spent the past summer studying at the University of Vienna under Dr. Alfred Adler, world famous psychologist, and at the University of Berlin, told more than 100 women present that they could overcome their sense of inferiority by readjusting their attitude toward their business environment.

She explained that all women suffer from an inferiority complex, and that when women enter business this bogey man of psychoanalysis is all the more deadly.

Emotional Odds Cited.

She told the women that they are up against emotional odds, adding that this handicap could be removed by responding impersonally to the petty jealousies that annoy them rather than personally. "The test of intelligence," she said, "is one's ability to solve problems despite the odds."

She praised the American Institute of Banking as a unit of education helping the individual to attain normality. One's success depends largely, she said, on a harmonious adjustment to inner and outer conflicts and the proper relationship of the individual to the group about him.

Other speakers at the banquet were: Aubrey O. Dooley, president of the Washington chapter; Richard A. Norris, chairman of the educational committee, and Miss Rosse Royce, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co. S. Winifred Burwell, chairman of the women's committee, presided.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—While early advances in cotton here today were not fully maintained, the market showed a generally steady tone on covering and trade buying which seemed to be promoted by an idea that constructive developments might be expected to follow recent conferences in Washington, firmness in Liverpool, and the failure of Southern hedging to show greater activity.

December contracts after selling up to 6.93 early or 18 points net higher, reacted to 6.81, but steadied up again closing at 6.88. The general market closed steady at net advances of 12 to 15 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 7 to 9 points in response to the higher Liverpool cables. There was some realizing and a little more Southern selling at the start, but moderate offerings were quite readily absorbed by buying which appeared to be coming partly from the trade and partly from commission houses or Wall street sources. The latter became quite active on the advance, as it promoted by the early firmness of the stock market and cotton showed considerable strength with October advancing to 6.73 and March to 7.24 or 18 to 20 points above Monday's closing quotations.

Offerings then increased somewhat as a result of realizing or reselling by some of the early buyers promoted by the easier turn in the afternoon stock market, and prices sagged off with a little more Southern selling in evidence. October declined to 6.59 and March to 7.10 or about 12 to 14 points from the best, but hedging failed to increase in the last hour, and the market stiffened up again on covering.

There was some buying here for Liverpool and trade account, but a good deal of the demand was attributed to a reduction in the short interest. The tropical disturbance reported over the extreme Southern Gulf of Mexico seemed to attract little if any attention and the day's weather news generally came in for very little comment, while traders were awaiting further developments in connection with Texas action on the coming acreage.

Liverpool cables reported local and continental buying in that market but said sales of cotton cloths and yarns were below production. Exports today, 19,061, making 422,073 so far this season. Port receipts, 34,092. U. S. port stocks, 2,852,014.

Futures:	High.	Low.	Close.
October	6.73	6.59	6.66
December	6.93	6.81	6.88
January	7.04	6.91	6.99
March	7.24	7.10	7.19
May	7.42	7.27	7.35

STOCK RALLY YIELDS TO HEAVIER LOSSES

New Low Prices Recorded in Several Issues; Rails Lead Declines.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Support given to a few pivotal industrials, notably U. S. Steel, American Can and General Motors, was nullified in the stock market today by recurrent weakness of the rails and heavy selling of American Telephone and some other leaders.

The result was the quick evaporation of a forenoon rally and a break by the general average into new low ground. Utilities, dipping sympathetically with Telephone as the Western Electric dividend was omitted, broke to a new bear market minimum, according to the Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite while the industrials closed at a duplication of their previous low. The average decline for 90 issues, however, was only nine-tenths of a point on sales totaling 2,164,580 shares.

A few industrials returned small net gains. Most prominent was U. S. Steel's rise of more than a point. Telephone, however, was off 4 at the close, although its extreme dip was 5. Consolidated Gas, Peoples Gas, Detroit Edison and North American contributed to the downward movement of the utility group.

Rails Lose Again.

In the rails, Union Pacific common and preferred each lost 3 net, Southern Pacific and Atchison were down more than 2, although the latter's maximum break was 5. Cotton Belt rallied with the news that enough stock had been deposited to meet Southern Pacific's merger proposal, which still has to get Interstate Commerce Commission consent. Illinois Central preferred, an inactive, tumbled 23, illustrating the thinness of the market.

Hershey Chocolate, common and preferred, had late sinking spells. Willys Overland preferred broke 9½ in anticipation of the dividend omission. Tidewater Oil preferred, International Silver and Soo Line preferred were weaker than the average run of stocks, while Westinghouse, whose directors meet for dividend action soon, reflected concern over the payment.

Passing of the Western Electric disbursement, which had been reduced in the previous quarter, means a rather substantial cut to the parent company's income, although Wall street believed that Telephone would still cover its own dividend this year. A. T. & T. has an expansion program scheduled for next year which should help its subsidiary, but the assumption was that the volume of new Bell System construction this year and a lower profit ratio had eaten sharply into current earnings.

Wheat Near Lows.

Wheat closed near the lows of the day as a reaction in Winnipeg and a disappointing export demand canceled earlier improvement. Final quotations were ⅛ lower to ¼ higher. Corn was firm, reflecting higher temperatures in the Southwest and a firmer cash market, and showed advances running up to 1⅜ for September. Cotton also firmed, up 12 to 15 points net.

A $77,000,000 drop in security loans of reporting Federal Reserve member banks showed the source of some of the recent security selling. Although "all other" loans, which include commercial borrowings, were higher, it seemed possible that the rise might have been partially due to an increase in acceptance holdings.

Freight loadings for the week ended September 5 were off about 4,000 cars from the immediately preceding period; incidentally, there had been gains in the previous three weeks, but the approach of Labor Day doubtless affected shipments.

Foreign exchanges ruled about steady, with the exception of the new lows for the Canadian dollar and the Argentine gold peso. Sterling cables closed unchanged at $4.86 1-16 for cables.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Readiness with which grains arose today and their stubborn resistance to selling, aroused comment that deflation of wheat had apparently reached an end. As a striking proof that cereals have achieved independence of stock market leadership, the fact was cited that although since September 1 industrial stocks had declined approximately 19 points and railroad shares 10 points wheat had scored gains. All cereals today acted oversold.

After material upturns at times, wheat closed irregular, ⅛ cent off to ¼ advance, corn ⅛@1⅜ up, oats showing ⅜@⅝ gain, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2 cents.

Accompanying the upward trend shown in grain prices was enlarged buying in which mills took an active part. Confirmation that breadstuff crops in western Europe had been seriously damaged was a notable stimulus, together with a decided falling-off in domestic primary receipts, today's primary arrivals amounting to but 1,430,000 bushels compared with 5,441,000 a week ago.

A leading authority said the United States wheat visible supply total had passed the season's peak, and that only once in the last ten years had an increase been shown after the supply began to diminish.

Curtailment of France's carry-over stock of wheat to only 10,000,000 bushels was reported, the lowest total ever known. There were also advices that French wheat import requirements this season would amount to fully 60,000,000 bushels, indicating that the French government would soon expand the milling quotas of foreign wheat permitted. Meanwhile, sharply reduced estimates of the yield of rye in Poland were also current, pointing to 70 per cent less than last year, with severe cuts shown likewise in other European countries.

Meagerness of receipts of corn, with arrivals of only 21 cars in Chicago today against 167 a week ago, gave strength to corn, the September delivery in particular. Oats derived firmness from better cash demand, including export business. A leading industry was reported buying oats to ship to its Canadian plants.

Provisions went lower, responsive to hog market declines but recovered as a result of grain strength.

BONDS REPEAT DIPS TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Selected Loans Drop Below Several Years' Losses; Sales $13,511,000.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The bond market declined irregularly today. Sales on the stock exchange aggregated $13,511,000, the largest total for a full session since June 2, when the turnover amounted to $14,103,000.

Average prices for twenty issues each of industrial and public utility bonds made new low records for several years, and the average for 60 bonds, including 20 rails, touched a new bottom also.

However, reason for some optimism appeared in the relative steadiness of rail issues. Rumors in Wall street credited Gov. Roosevelt with the intention of recommending to the Legislature at its regular session in January a moratorium on the requirements fixed for bonds considered legal investments for savings banks.

Railroads and Requirements.

A number of railroads are known to be barely meeting the requirements and a number of others are not doing so, although all of both groups have had high credit standing heretofore. At any rate rail issues generally divided their net changes about evenly between gains and declines as contrasted with generally lower prices in utility, industrial and foreign bonds.

Bonds of the St. Louis Southwestern responded promptly and sharply to the news that more than the required amount of the stock of that carrier had been deposited under the offer of acquisition by the Southern Pacific.

The consolidated 4s of 1932 closed with a net gain of 12⅞ points after selling somewhat higher. The first 4s of 1989 gained 3¾ points and the 5s of 1952 closed 10 points higher.

Phones Ease fractionally.

American Telephone debenture 5s of 1960 and of 1965 eased fractionally after the omission of the Western Electric quarterly dividend. Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s were heavily sold. Various other utilities were easier.

United States Treasury and Liberty loans were weak although activity was concentrated in two or three issues. The new Treasury 3s of 1951-55 were admitted to trading on the stock exchange and were the most active of the group, selling about ½ point below the offering price.

Foreign bonds were generally lower although the turnover in many of them was limited. Argentine and German obligations made group declines.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

TO PREVENT ATHLETE'S FOOT.

DR. E. D. OSBORNE and Miss Hitchcock report a method of preventing athlete's foot which they found particularly practicable and efficient in a year's trial in the Buffalo public schools. The chemical used is a 1 per cent solution of sodium hypochlorite.

This chemical, used to sterilize public water supplies, is inexpensive, easily used, not irritating to the skin, not poisonous, and kills all molds and fungi. It was its well-known ability to kill vegetable microbes belonging to these families that caused Dr. Osborne to undertake the experiment. During the first year the experimenters used a soft rubber mat pan set on the gymnasium floor. The pan part of this mat was 2 feet square and about 3 inches deep. It was placed flat on the floor and filled with fluid to a depth of 2 inch. Two were used in each gymnasium.

One was so placed that every person going from the locker room to the shower had to step in this pan. A second was so located that every person passing from the swimming tank to the dressing room had to step in the pan of fluid. Enough fresh fluid was added to each pan daily to maintain a depth of at least 2 inches.

After the experiment had been in operation several months they built a shallow pan in the floor of a passageway leading from the dressing room to the showers and, in case it was necessary, a second one in a passageway leading from the tank to the dressing room. Every swimmer is required to stand one-quarter of a minute in the pan of hypochlorite solution.

Dr. Osborne reports that the use of this solution method is ridding the Buffalo school population of ringworm of the meet. In the space of more than one year not a single case of athlete's foot has been found in a person who has used the solution as a foot wash. As a preventive the method appears to give entire satisfaction. There is no reason why this method can not be used in the household bathroom, in golf club showers—in fact, anywhere.

A 5 per cent solution of sodium thiosulphite, also called hyposulphite of soda, has been used for the same purpose, and with satisfactory results. However, thiosulphite is more expensive, and has some other drawbacks.

SPREADING OF DISEASE.

Mrs. D. W. writes: Kindly advise me how the following diseases may be contracted when one is not in contact with the diseased patient; when do they become contagious, and how may they be avoided:

1. Typhoid fever.
2. Diphtheria.
3. Also, is infantile paralysis exclusively a disease of children?

REPLY.

1. This disease is spread by carriers, by food (including milk and water), and by flies. To avoid it be particular as to water, milk and food.
2. Diphtheria is spread by carriers and by cases. To avoid it keep away from people with sore throats. Avoid carriers.
3. While infantile paralysis prevails especially among children it attacks adults rather frequently.

REPLY.

Some children, and a very few adults are poisoned by eggs. For nearly all normal young to middle aged adults eggs are an excellent food. The same is true for the great majority of children and for most babies. Two a day is not too much. If one has nephritis he should have advice about eating eggs. The same applies to elderly people.

SLIM LINE UNDIES.

Here's a charming combination in bandeau and panties.

You'll love the flat slimness through the hips and the full flaring pantie legs. The bandeau closes at the center-back.

And to make them takes but 1¾ yards of 39-inch material with 5¾ yards of binding for the 16-year size.

And they are so entirely simple, they could almost be run on the sewing machine before breakfast.

Style No. 124 may be had in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

It is interesting "pick-up" sewing if made by hand, which gives a French accent.

Crepe de chine, flat crepe silk, ninon, satin crepe, chiffon and voile may be used for this lovely set.

Gene Sarazen Among 16 to Survive

Routs Al Espinosa by 9 and 8, as Match Play Begins.

O'Hara Ousts Hagen; Jim Foulis Victor Over Farrell.

By BILL KING.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Four of the outstanding members of the Professional Golfers Association, including Sir Walter Hagen himself, today came to grief in the opening 36-hole matches of that body's championship play here on the cramped and difficult Wannamoisett course.

Hagen, whose summer campaign includes but one important victory, the Canadian open, was not in form to combat the accurate putting of Old Pete O'Hara, who migrated to Verona, Pa., many years ago after winning the Irish championship.

O'Hara Easy Winner Over Hagen.

The roly-poly Irishman's opening round against Walter, who won the P. G. A. five times when he was at his peak, was a neat 75 that gave him a 3 up lead. Hagen, trying desperately to rally, only succeeded in dubbing his drives as O'Hara oneputted him to death coming in. With Hagen no better in the afternoon, Peter merely had to play safe to sail home with a 4 and 3 win.

Leo Diegel, of Detroit, P. G. A. champion in 1928 and 1929, gave Wild Bill Mehlhorn, of New York, a bang-up battle for the late holes. Bill, however, stopped his streak by sinking a pair of long putts for birdies to clinch his 3 and 2 decision.

Another star fell when Johnny Farrell, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., successful this morning in what started out as a five-cornered play-off for a single match play berth, bowed out on the thirty-sixth green to Jim Foulis, of Chicago, 2 up. Farrell, needing that hole to square matters, trapped his tee shot and gave up the ghost by being overcautious with a 20-foot putt. Foulis, on in 2, holed out his second for a par 4.

Another titleholder bit the dust when Cyril Walker, of Ridgewood, N. J., subdued Ed Dudley, Concordville, Pa., by the decisive margin of 5 and 4. Dudley recently won the Western open from a capable field.

Armour Steps Out in Afternoon.

Tommy Armour, the defending champion, after being held even by Joe Kirkwood, trick shot expert from Chicago, for eighteen holes, cut loose in the afternoon with some par golf that enabled him to defeat the transplanted Australian by a 2 and 1 margin.

This year's open titlist, Billy Burke, of Greenwich, Conn., was not pushed by Dave Hackney, of Lowell, Mass. Burke had a 2-up lead at lunch and, although the Massachusetts veteran played steadily, managed to end the match on the thirty-third hole, where he sank a birdie deuce to become 3 up and three to go.

Gene Sarazen, another two-time P. G. A. winner and the leading contender for Armour's title, played the same kind of golf against Al Espinosa, Chicago, that he did yesterday when he won the medal with a 36-hole total of 145. The Long Island Italian was a stroke over par 70 on his morning round, which put him 3 up on Espinosa, and on the second trip he won five of the outward holes before his opponent gained one at the turning green. The match ended on the twenty-eighth, where Gene gained a par 4 to become 9 up.

MacFarlane Scores Over Cuici.

Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., who defeated Bobby Jones in the playoff for the 1925 open title, blasted out a 3 and 2 victory over Henry Cuici, Stratford, Conn. Horton Smith, Detroit, continued in the running for the $1,000 first prize by lacing Walter Bemish, Geneseo, N. Y., 7 and 6.

Two other matches went the full distance, Bob Crowley, Haverhill, Mass., defeating Pat Circelli, New Rochelle, N. Y., and Denny Shute, Hudson, Ohio, nosing out Tony Butler, Corpus Christi, Tex., both by 1 up margins.

In the second rounders, which will start tomorrow at 10 a. m. (Eastern daylight) Sarazen will oppose Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.; MacFarlane will engage Smith, Walker will play Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn., and O'Hara will try to outputt Tom Creavy, of Albany, N. Y.

Play in the lower half of the draw will pit Crowley against the open champion; Abe Espinosa, Chicago, against Mehlhorn, Shute against Foulis and Armour against Walter Murray, former public links player from Valparaiso, Ind.

FIRST ROUND RESULTS IN U. S. PRO TOURNEY

Gene Sarazen, Great Neck, N. J., defeated Al Espinosa, Chicago, 9 and 8.

Horton Smith, Detroit, defeated Walter Demish, Geneseo, N. Y., 7 and 6.

Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., defeated Arthur Guiss, Narragansett, R. I., 3 and 2.

Peter O'Hara, Verona, Pa., defeated Walter Hagen, Detroit, 4 and 3.

Willie Macfarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., defeated Henry Cuici, Stratford, Conn., 3 and 2.

Billy Burke, Greenwich, Conn., defeated Dave Hackney, Lowell, Mass., 3 and 3.

Cyril Walker, Ridgewood, N. J., defeated Ed Dudley, Concordville, Pa., 5 and 4.

Tom Creavy, Albany, N. Y., defeated Jack Collins, Dayton, Ohio, 5 and 4.

John Golden, Noroton, Conn., defeated Albert Sargent, Toledo, Ohio, 3 and 2.

Abe Espinosa, Chicago, defeated Vincent Eldred, Bellevue, Pa., 4 and 3.

Bill Mehlhorn, New York, defeated Leo Diegel, Detroit, 3 and 2.

Walter Murray, Valparaiso, Ind., defeated Eddie Schultz, Troy, N. Y., 3 and 1.

Bob Crowley, Haverhill, Mass., defeated Pat Circelli, New Rochelle, N. Y., 1 up.

Jim Foulis, Chicago, defeated Johnny Farrell, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 1 up.

Tommy Armour, Detroit, defeated Joe Kirkwood, Chicago, 2 and 1.

Denny Shute, Hudson, Ohio, defeated Tony Butler, Corpus Christi, Tex., 1 up.

Johnson Fines Marberry After Words in Dugout

Ill Feeling Crops Out Again Between Box Ace and Manager.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

PITCHER FRED MARBERRY, who showed signs of friction with Manager Walter Johnson at the Biloxi training camp late March, has kicked over the traces again and, as a result, has been fined by the Washington leader.

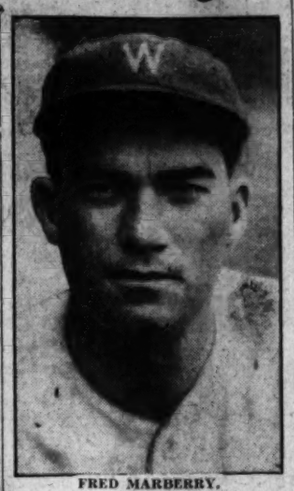
withdrew Marberry from the mound

The trouble started when Johnson in Monday's game against the St. Louis Browns. At the time, it was reported that Fred's withdrawal was due to his injured right hand, hurt by a liner off Jack Burns' bat. His hand was actually hurt, but it is understood that upon coming to the bench he made some remarks which Johnson did not like, and was told that he could turn in his uniform and consider himself suspended for the balance of the season.

—INSERT A—

The whole affair was kept a deep, dark secret, and it did not leak out until yesterday. Marberry refused to discuss the matter in any way, but Johnson, after dodging the issue, finally admitted that he and the pitcher had some words.

Last night, however, the Nat manager broke down and confessed that he had slapped a fine on Marberry, although he would not state its amount. "I did not allow Marberry to put on a uniform today," he said last night, "but had a talk with him after the game. I fined him, and told him to report as usual tomorrow and we would forget about the whole argument."



FRED MARBERRY.

While Johnson would not confirm having first suspended the pitcher, from other sources it is learned that he did and then changed his mind and assessed a fine, figuring that a suspension would run into pretty big money—more than was justified under the circumstances.

So Marberry will be on the job again today, although his injured hand will prevent him from taking an assignment for two or three days more.

Primo Rated 13th Among Heavies

Dropped From 4th in Revised List of National Body.

Sharkey Rated Best of U. S. Group; Loughran Ranked No. 3.

DETROIT, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The championship committee of the National Boxing Association in its annual report today to the association's annual convention revised the rankings of boxers in several classes and dropped Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, from fifth position in the last quarterly ranking to No. 13.

The committee's report, which was adopted, retained the rating of Jack Sharkey, of Boston, as the most likely contender for the world's heavyweight title held by Max Schmeling, of Germany, and placed Tommy Loughran third on the list.

Previous to the announcement of rankings the association as a whole recommended the formation of an international committee to approve or reject contestants for world championship titles, favored American tournaments in all classes to choose contenders, and went on record as favoring the repeal of the Federal law prohibiting the transportation of fight films. Baltimore was chosen for the 1932 national convention.

Schaaf Ranked Fourth.

Officers will be elected tomorrow. Gen. John V. Clinnin, Chicago, is expected to be reelected president.

The championship committee placed Ernie Schaaf, protege of Sharkey, fourth on the heavyweight list, with Mickey Walker, W. L. Stribling, Larry Gains, Charley Retzlaff, Tuffy Griffiths and Hein Mueller, of Germany, following in order.

Carnera was ranked over the protest of Karl D. Malone, Kentucky commissioner, who expressed the belief that since Carnera was on the association's suspension list he should not be ranked. Steve Hamas, a promising heavyweight a year ago, was dropped from tenth to fourteenth position, and Paulino Uzcudun, tenth in the August ranking, was lowered to eighteenth.

Over the objections of W. L. Morrissey, Colorado commissioner, the association voted Maxie Rosenbloom king of the light-heavyweight class.

Manley Favored For Number One.

Commissioner Morrissey favored the placing of George Manley, Colorado boxer, in the number 1 position, stating that Manley had taken two decisions from Rosenbloom. Manley was placed number 2 on the list. Following Manley in order were Jimmy Slattery, Lou Scozza, Billy Jones, Joe Banovic, Joe Knight, Bob Godwin, Owen Phelps and Al Gainor. Battling Bozo, ranked fifth in August, was declared out of the class, the committee reporting that he is no longer able to make the weight.

The middleweight title also was declared vacant, with Gorilla Jones being ranked number 1. Following came Harry Smith, Vince Dundee, Frankie O'Brien, Tiger Thomas, Jack Hood, England; Marcel Thil, France; Dave Shade, Angel Clivelle, Porto Rico, and Georgie Nichols.

Ranking of the first ten in the other clases are:

ATHLETICS CLIMAX CAMPAIGN WITH MARGIN OF 13 1-2 GAMES; BROWNS BEAT NATS ON ERRORS

Bluege and Myer Aid in 5-4 Defeat by Poor Fielding.

St. Louis Scores Four Unearned Runs in Last 2 Innings.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

LLOYD BROWN pitched good ball yesterday and the Nationals hit well enough at timely moments to give him enough runs to win, but Infielders Buddy Myer and Ossie Bluege did not know that "charity begins at home," and contributed errors which gave the St. Louis Browns the decision, 5 to 4. The three alien runs which knotted the string and the one which proved decisive all were unearned, the result being that the loss, coupled with a New York triumph, enabled the Yankees to pull up to within one game of the Johnsons in their second-place battle.

Going into the eighth session, it looked as though the Nationals were in, for they were enjoying a 4-to-1 lead and Brown was pitching steadily. Pinch-Hitter Ferrell led off with a single and Schulte followed suit. After Burns popped to Myer, the second baseman fumbled Goslin's roller and the bases were filled. Had Myer not made his miscue, Kress' roller to Cronin would have been the third out and no runs would have been scored.

Battencourt Singles Home Tying Runs.

But Myer did make the error, and it let Ferrell tally on Kress' out. Melillo was purposely walked, and Bettencourt then singled two mates home, making the score 4-all.

Bluege's error in the ninth was more or less excusable. Levey opened this canto with a single and was sacrificed by Gray. When Schulte rolled to the third sacker, he had to make a bluff peg to hold Levey on second. Then his throw to first pulled Kuhel off the sack. Levey, meanwhile hustled to third and was able to bring in what proved to be the deciding run on Burns' roller to Myer.

The Nationals had all the better of it in the first seven rounds. Bob Cooney, right-handed rookie from Wichita Falls, had been quite stingy with his hits, but fairly free with his passes, the result being that two walks were turned into Washington runs when twinned up with some timely blows. He was eased out to let Ferrell hit for him starting the eighth and the veteran Sam Gray finished the game and was given credit for the victory.

Meanwhile, Brown had been pitching exceptional ball. Only two Browns saw base life and neither advanced past first in the first four rounds and it was the scatchiest kind of a hit that enabled the aliens to score in the fifth.

Scratch Hit Gives Browns First Run.

After Melillo had led off with a double, he was held to a one-base advance on the next two outs. Then Levey topped one down third-base way and it eluded Bluege, letting Melillo score. A wasted single in each of the sixth and seventh was all the Browns drew until Messrs. Myer and Bluege collaborated in giving them the game in the last two rounds.

Cooney allowed only one hit, a double by Brown, in the first three innings, but was scored on in the fourth. He opened the inning by walking Cronin, and Kuhel's double turned this into a run.

After the Browns evened the score in their fifth, the Nats came right back with another run. With one out, Myer was caught trying to stretch his single into a double. Then Rice walked and West tripled to deep left.

When singles by Spencer and Brown, a wild pitch and one shot by Rice gave the Nats two more tallies and a three-run lead in the seventh, it looked as though it was all over but the shouting—to every one but the Browns. They refused to quit, though, and so "Lady Luck" rewarded them for their perseverance in the form of the Nat infield errors, already mentioned.

Brown, with a double and a single, was the only National hitting safely more than once, while two hits each were garnered by Burns, Kress and Levey, of the visitors. Two good stops by Cronin and a running catch by Schulte were the game's fielding gems.

Thrill Lacking For Fans in Flag Conquest of A's

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—There was no celebration or special thrill for the Philadelphia fans today when it was learned that the Athletics, under the leadership of Connie Mack, had won their ninth American League pennant.

It was a foregone conclusion, but still satisfaction was expressed at the performance of the world's champions.

Shibe Park was deserted when word came from Washington one hour after the home game was over that the St. Louis Browns had beaten Washington and made it mathematically impossible for the Nats to catch the Athletics.

Connie Mack, who will be 69 years old in December, heard the news just after he entered his home from Shibe Park.

"That's fine," he exclaimed.

"It's your ninth but not last?" he was asked.

"I hope not," said the veteran leader.

"I am rather pleased, of course, that our boys have again won the pennant," said Mack. "It did not come with that thrill as it would had we had a hard fight right down to the wire. We have had a good lead right along and some of the thrill was taken out of it.

"Now, we will get ready for the world's series. It is going to be a good battle."

St. Louis, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Connie Mack's "ailing" Athletics, who will battle the St. Louis Cardinals again this year in another world series starting here October 1, barring unlooked-for complications, have nothing on the Red Birds—not even when it comes to "injuries," say the St. Louisians.

What with reports from Philadelphia telling about the "injured" on the American League's leading team, Manager "Gabby" Street and his Cardinals today came forth with an assertion that the National League champions are a sick lot, too, and itemized "injuries" to prove it.

Jimmy Wilson, catcher, badly shaken up in a collision with Harry McCurdy, of the Phillies, Sunday.

Gus Mancuso, the other first-string Card catcher, injured leg, or legs.

Burleigh Grimes, pitcher, sick abed.

Sylvester Johnson, pitcher, painful case of ivy poisoning.

Frankie Frisch, second baser, jammed right thumb.

Rommell on Mound in 14-3 Defeat of Cleveland.

Many Long Streaks Were Feature of A's Season.

(Associated Press.)

THE PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS clinched their third-straight American League pennant yesterday by defeating Cleveland while Washington was losing to St. Louis, 5 to 4. The Athletics, now 13½ games ahead, could lose their remaining twelve games, with Washington winning its last thirteen, and still finish a full game ahead.

For a time yesterday it appeared the Nationals would hang on for another day, retaining a mathematical chance at the flag, but the Browns came from behind to score 3 runs in the eighth and tie the score, and then win out in the ninth.

If the Athletics, who have held the lead since the first month of the race, should lose all their remaining games and the Nationals win theirs, the final standing would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Athletics	99	55	.643
Washington	98	56	.636

After getting away to a comparatively slow start this year, winning only half of their first 14 games, the A's hit their real championship stride on May 5, quickly went into the lead and never again were in serious danger of being headed.

Starting May 5, they won 17 straight games and 20 of their next 21 contests. Again, in mid-July, they ran up another string of 13 straight victories. More or less crippled for the last month, they have not put on any extended winning streaks, but have been content to slide on into the championship behind their big margin.

Connie Mack, manager of the three-time champs, let the veteran Eddie Rommel have the distinction of pitching the deciding game today.

The Athletics pounded Harder and Hildebrand, of the Indians, for 18 hits yesterday. Dib Williams led the onslaught with five hits in five times at bat.

Every member of the champions' lineup hit safely and also drove in a run. Pitcher Rommel was the only Mackman not to score a run.

GEHRIG HITS NUMBER 44; YANKS WIN

New York Pounds 2 Tiger Pitchers to Cop, 9 to 2.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Hitting both Bridges and Sullivan hard, the Yankees made a clean sweep of their four-game series with Detroit by winning today's game, 9 to 2.

Led by Lou Gehrig, who belted his forty-fourth home run in the fifth inning with two on base, the Yanks hit in timely fashion and took full advantage of the wildness of the Tiger hurlers. Byrd and Sewell also hit home runs.

Sanford Hero In Win With 11 Goals

Sets Scoring Record in Elimination of Invading Four.

Converts Passes Into Scores in Five of 8 Chukkers.

By ALAN GOULD.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Anglo-American Hurricanes, led by the spectacular Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, blew Lewis Lacey, the famous Argentine ace, and his Hurlingham Club team from Buenos Aires out of the United States open polo championship today with as devastating an onslaught as has ever been witnessed on classic International Field.

Ably supported by Capt. C. T. I. (Pat) Roark and Winston Guest, his two high-goal aces, the youthful Sanford went on a record-breaking scoring rampage and scored no less than 11 goals as the Hurricanes crushed Hurlingham by the lopsided score of 18 to 5.

Sanford Tallies in Five of Eight Periods.

Tallying in five of the eight chukkers, as he converted passes into goals from any and all angles, Sanford gave a performance unprecedented in national championship competition. It was the most spectacular exhibition at No. 1 since the Californian, Eric Pedley, personally contributed 9 goals to the deciding victory of the American "big four" over the British challengers for the International Cup a year ago.

Against the high-powered drive of the hurricanes, who scored four goals in the first period and seldom relaxed their pressure, the veteran Argentine combination was outclassed. Injuries to the Miles Brothers affected Hurlingham's condition and, with Lacey far below his usual hitting form, the South Americans never were able to cope with the teamwork or sensational hitting of the defending open champions.

Roark, Guest Are Brilliant For Winners.

The offensive and defensive play of Roark and Guest kept the Hurricanes in control from start to finish. Roark, who looked much more like a 10-goal star than Lacey throughout the game, went on a personal scoring spree as he tallied four straight goals in the fourth and fifth periods.

The Hurricanes triumph put them into the final round in defense of the open championship. Saturday they are scheduled to play the winner of tomorrow's semifinal match between Santa Paula, Argentine champions, and Tommy Hitchcock's Greentree combination, making its first tournament appearance.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LINCOLN FIELDS, Chicago, Ill., Sept. 15.—The Eastlake, an allowance affair which received a list of nine 3-year-olds and upward in the overnight entries, will be decided tomorrow over the 6 furlongs distance. This feature will be supported by the Humbold Park Purse, a high-class claiming event for 3-year-olds exclusively at the 1-mile route. The rest of the program is devoted to the ordinary platers, but the fields are closely matched and should result in some thrilling contests for the midweek patrons of the Lincoln Fields course.

FOURTH RACE—The Carraude & Howard entry of ISLAM and DOUBLE HEART appear well suited by the conditions of the feature event and figure to annex the main attraction. BILL LOONEY, a consistent gelding from the J. N. McFadden string, has turned in several excellent performances and at the three-quarter-mile distance will prove troublesome. MUCKER is an erratic performer, but should finish in the money.

FIFTH RACE—Of the nine named to contest this event, BURGOO, gallant Bradley color bearer, is at the top of his form and should experience little difficulty from LADY DEAN. The latter has been rested up but is gifted with a high turn of speed and is given the place call, with ANNIE REE favored over UNCLE HENRY for the minor award.

FIRST RACE—VISHNU should graduate from the field of maiden juvenile colts and geldings pitted against him here. The Nevada Stock Farm's youngster just missed the winner's circle last start, losing the decision by a nose. DISCOBUS has trained well, stepping three panels in 0:38 2-5 as a final prep. BEAVER is ready to contest the issue.

SECOND RACE—HAMILTON is favored to show the way to the large field in this mile gallop. The Mrs. Swikard horse is on the improve and his last served as a conditioner. DIODORO has raced consistently of late and is the place selection, with GOLD MINT rated over the others.

THIRD RACE—An evenly matched field of juveniles will face the barrier in this number. BAND TIME, from the Dixiana Stable, displayed flashes of speed in his last, and under the conditions of this contest, figures to gain the honors. CATHERINE FOX disappointed when installed favorite but is capable of a better performance. TRIASSIC and RUFFIAN should battle it out for the short end of the purse.

SIXTH RACE—LIEUT. RUSSELL defeated the same class last start and under identical conditions figures to repeat here. Chief opposition will be furnished by PRINCE TOKALON. The latter has raced well over a route and should account for the place. PROSE AND POETRY is fancied for the minor honors.

SEVENTH RACE—LIQUIDATE, far down on the list, should score if she gets in. The Dis Donc filly turned in a splendid effort in her last triumph and lightly weighted with 104 pounds will be hard to beat. ENGLEWOOD, winner of her last, is nicely placed and should force the pace. ARROWLIKE has run several creditable races and should last to take down the show award.

Latter energetically ridden throughout, showed an even effort. YES weakened. THE WHIG loafed under strong urging first half mile and closed some ground in the stretch. GOLD TIP was outrun.

Latter came through on inside entering stretch, held the lead briefly and quit under hard urging. RIVER FOREST was on inside in stretch. NIFTY had speed but was through after a half mile. SUNIDAY lost considerable ground and closed well in a good effort. DEPRESSION had no mishaps. CRYSTAL PRINCE raced well but was through after a half mile. ENERGY had no mishaps. CRYSTAL PRINCE was done after five-eighths.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs (out of chute). Purse, $1,200; claiming. The Kankakee Purse. For 3-year-olds and upward; fillies and mares. Winner, E. F. Prichard, owner. Trained by J. J. Greely. Value to winner, $850; second, 200; third, $100; fourth, 50. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:12 4-5, 1:27 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WEIDELEEN, $13.70, $4.78, $3.38; SISTER MARY, $3.24, $2.64; PATRICIA ANN, $3.40.

WEIDELEEN, racing in her best form and suited by the soft going, was under strong reserve opening three-quarters, lost much ground when drawing into the lead and without the start, came again mildly in stretch and, weakened in final seventy yards. PATRICIA ANN began fast, saved ground and quit badly in stretch run. NELLIE CUSTIS appeared to sulk. ANDROMEDA was always far back.

DON LEON, well ridden and away fast, stole away into a long lead at the turn, increased his advantage when shaken up in stretch, but weakened badly in final eighth and just lasted. SATIN SPAR, well up and slightly forced back when leaving the chute, went wide at stretch, closing with fine speed and was rapidly wearing down the winner. MY DANDY, rushed along from the start, weakened under his impost after reaching final quarter. CAMP PRINCE closed well. KARL EITEL quit early. UNCOMMON GOLD was far back throughout.

DODGSON, much the best and taken into the lead, easily withstood RIFF RAFF'S bid, was not seriously threatened by DIXIE LAD and had something left. DIXIE LAD began slowly, saved ground when working his way up and failed to menace winner at stretch turn and weakened in final drive. TOP HATTIE raced well. BRUSH, up close for three-quarters, failed to respond when put to a drive. EARL OF WARWICK was done after five-eighths.

DURVA, a keen factor from the start and under steadying restraint for three-eighths, took the drive gamely and got up in final strides. GREY KITTY had speed, was rated along cleverly to stretch, then held on stubbornly, but was not good enough. MAJEL, away in a tangle, raced to a contending position quickly, failed to attempt to get through on inside in stretch and, when brought to the outside in final sixteenth, closed fastest of all and appeared best. Printers Gain Tie for Lead In Play-Off

Payne Weakens in 4th After Giving Only One Hit.

Corkins Effective in Relief Role in Last Five Innings.

CAPITALIZING to the fullest on seven hits and some erratic defensive work of their foes, the Government Printing Office nine came from behind to defeat Eldbrooke yesterday, 8 to 4, in a Week Day League series game on the Ellipse. The contest was stopped in the seventh on account of darkness.

By virtue of its victory, G. P. O. tied Commerce for first place and regained fully the prestige lost by an earlier defeat. The series now appears certain of a battle to the finish between the deadlocked first-place occupants.

Held to one hit by Payne in the first three innings while the Churchmen stacked up four runs off their own hurler, Lyons, the Typos looked a beaten lot as they went to bat in the fourth chapter.

At this stage Payne lost some of his effectivness and also fell a victim to a bunting attack, added to which G. P. O. inserted several timely blows to shove across five runs and gain the lead.

Homan started the rally with an infield hit, following which B. Schneider bunted and was safe on an error. Mosedale then bunted to jam the bases. This set the stage for a heroic effort but Hollis, whose turn came first, was unequal to the occasion. Harding, next up, also couldn't connect with the ball but he waited Payne out and drew a pass, forcing home Homan with the first Typo run.

With the paths still crowded, Gartland lunged into a fast one for a three-bagger, scoring three runs and tying the score, and Simons immediately followed with a single to cash Gartland with what proved the decisive run.

Corkins, who went to the mound in relief for Lyons, protected the Printers' lead over the remainder of the route. He fanned five.

Freeman featured for Eldbrooke, driving in three runs with a pair of hits.

ALEXANDRIA GRID HOPES BRIGHT

Coach Given Pleased With Squad; Opening Delayed.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 15.—Maurice Given, athletic director of the Alexandria High School Football Team, today announced he was enthused over the preseason showing of his candidates for the varsity eleven.

The "Twins" will play ten games this season and will probably open on September 26 at Baggett's Stadium. They were slated to open with the National Training School eleven in Washington on September 22, but Given has shifted this date until later in the season.

A tentative first team has been slated and is composed of the following: Carr and Ewald, ends; Studds and Turner, tackles; Janney and Mendelsohn, guards, and Jackson, center. In the back field will be Jennier, quarter back; Routzhan and Simpson, halves, and Bruin, full back.

Given announces the first team will average 181 in the line. Mendelson, a 225-pound player, and Studds, Janney and Turner, all over 180, bring up the weight of the "Mules."

Reserves for the club this season are Bowman and Brown, ends; Suthard and Luckett, tackles; Edwards and Sommers, guards; Hoeft, center, and backs, Hudson, Yarter, Davis, Hamilton, Sheads and Embray.

Untried candidates who are showing much in workouts are B. Mendelson, Abraham, Kennedy, Cohen, Simms, Munday, Carlton, Peyton, Dudley, Purvis, Langford, Jennier, Horton.

Seven letter men back for the team are Carr, captain; Studds, Jackson, S. Mendelson, Turner, Jennier, Routzhan and Bruin.

APACHES MEET.

The Apaches, District professional football champions, will hold a meeting tomorrow night at the Sport Mart to name a coach from three names which have been submitted to club. All candidates are urged to be present.

PRO LEAGUE TEAMS MEET.

A meeting will be held tonight at the home of Rob Roy Mackey, with a view to forming a professional football league, with games to be played at Griffith Stadium. Among the teams represented tonight will be the Irvington eleven, crack Baltimore outfit.

BUD THOMAS.

CITY LEAGUE ACE SIGNED BY NATS

Bud Thomas, Pitching Star of Olmsteds, to Make Trip South.

THE Capital City League, parent body of organized sandlot baseball in Washington, sponsored by The Washington Post, once more achieved its purpose in life last night when Bud Thomas, ace flinger for the Olmsted Grill nine, was ordered by Clark Griffith to report to the Washington Baseball team next spring in Biloxi.

The boy, who hails from Charlottesville, Va., weighs 175 pounds and stands a mite over 6 feet. He is 20 years old.

A chance remark last winter between Headmaster Osborne, of the Charlottesville School for Boys, and Bert Olmsted, local baseball enthusiast, was really the opening chord of Thomas' chance with the Nats. Osborne and Olmsted were chatting, during the course of The Post's A. A. U. basket ball tournament, when Olmsted happened to remark that the 1931 Grill team could use a good pitcher. Osborne then told him of a youth from down in Virginia who knew what it was all about out in the pitcher's box.

With Clark Griffith looking on, Thomas granted but one hit and fanned eighteen in the first game of the Capital City League this year.

Yanks, Giants and Robins To Play Charity Twin Bill

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees, Giants and Brooklyn Robins will meet in a double-header at the Polo Grounds September 24 for the benefit of the unemployed instead of in a five-game city series, it was decided today.

The Robins and Giants will meet in the first game and the Yankees and Robins in the second contest. The entire receipts will be turned over to the mayor's committee on unemployment. A charity game between the Giants and Yankees September 9 brought $60,000 into the fund.

A statement announcing abandonment of the series idea, issued after a meeting today between the mayor's sports committee and representatives of the three ball clubs said in part:

"It was felt that with $60,000 already in hand for the unemployed as a result of the Giants-Yankee game, it would jeopardize the best interest of the fund for the needy if this sum were thrown back into a pool administered under postseason series rules, out of which the unemployed could net not more than 37 per cent.

"It was the judgment of the conference that the entire situation would be served best by a double-header at the Polo Grounds Thursday, September 24, with all the receipts going to the fund and the clubs contributing the services of their players as well as the expense of conducting the contests."

FIVE TEAMS DRILLING AT V. M. I.

Number 1 Players Withstand Challenge for Jobs.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 15.—After a week of careful conditioning and drilling in fundamentals, V. M. I. football candidates suddenly found themselves in a series of scrimmages designed to determine the tentative line-ups of five full teams. When the dust cleared away after an hour's tussle Saturday and somewhat shorter sessions Monday and Tuesday, Coaches Bill Raftery and Ed Hess were able to take more careful stock of this year's assortment of gridiron hopefuls.

As was expected, the tentative first team stood the test well enough to leave the line-up unchanged, for the time being, but there was a general shuffling about of candidates from the second team down, with the most radical shake-ups affecting the back field candidates. Promotions and demotions from team to team will continue almost daily, according to the coaches, the Hampden-Sidney game Saturday being the important hurdle for "A" and "B" team candidates to get over gracefully.

The Smith boys, Irvin, from Richmond, and "We," from Birmingham, crowded into the picture at the expense of more experienced players to win berths on the second team. Irvin was a good freshman end last year and his rise was not unlooked for, but "We" gained 15 pounds during the summer and decided he was a quarter back to emerge from the crowd of sophomore backs.

Another one of Coach Bill Raftery's rapid-fire shifts resulted in "Stumpy" Travers, a sophomore half back last season, taking advantage of a gain in weight to grab the full back berth on the second team. Ralph Waite and Jim Wood, reserve backs last year, are also "B" backs at present, with Doc Bailey, a letter man, running for the time being with the "C" eleven.

Sophomore linemen, who, though making mistakes as a result of inexperience, have shown enough ability in the rough work to hang on to positions on the first three teams, are: Charlie Straub, first team tackle; Gene Spaulding, second team tackle; Johnnie Goodwin, third team center; Van Holmes and Johnnie Palmer, third team guards, and George Minor, third team end.

CHICAGO SET STARTS SEPT. 30

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Cubs and White Sox today agreed to open their annual city series championship Wednesday, September 30, at Wrigley Field. It will be the best four-out-of-seven-game variety.

NEW TALENT SHINES AT V. P. I.

Gobbler Coaches See Promise in Sophs in Workouts.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Sept. 15.—Unheralded youngsters with no past gridiron glories to their credit are coming to the front in the daily football drills at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

In double-teaming drills for the linemen, in tackling practice, in daily scrimmages, and again in Saturday's practice game, ambitious new gridmen shared honors with Gobbler veterans. Luther Jennings, a promising full back from Clifton Forge, gave a good account of himself both on offense and defense in the Saturday battle. He drove through the veteran linemen for occasional gains and backed up the line well when opponents had the ball.

Garland Hoenstine, another sophomore, is showing marked improvement in his play at tackle. Jim Geddie, a center candidate, who loves the game, is justifying predictions of those who saw him star in intermural contests last spring. He did a nice job of snapping the ball to Coach Neal's veteran backfield in Saturday's contest and is fast becoming a worthy understudy to Capt. Gene Brown at the pivot.

Red English, another recruit from intramural ranks, continued his snappy defensive play against the heavier veterans at guard. Sent to the firing line by Coach Clark midway the practice game, English made his meager 155 pounds felt until the final whistle. The new sophomore backs are finding it difficult to pick up yardage when plays are directed at him.

This does not mean that these boys are ready for varsity ball at Tech, but they are scrappy and learning the game. They should become increasingly useful as the season progresses.

Three sophomores—Heinie Groth, Al Casey and Carl Robison—were teamed with veteran Frank Howard in one back field which raced behind a veteran line in the Saturday tussle. Jim Swart, a tackle for two years, was running at guard and may play a new role in this position on the team all season.

Against this ball toting combination the coaches sent another set composed of two seniors and two sophomores. Bill Porterfield was at quarter back and Luther Jennings at full back, while the half back posts went to Sam Hardwick and Bunt Ottley, two light but experienced lads who won their monograms last fall. The mentors will continue to shift players until they find a suitable combination.

JACOBS WINS FEATURE AT WARDMAN

Beats Shore, 6-0, 6-1, to Enter Tennis Quarter-Finals.

CONTINUING the spectacular playing which has marked his every appearance on the courts in the Wardman Park invitation singles championship, Eddie Jacobs, best of the Middle Atlantic players, burst his way into the quarter-final round yesterday by swamping Frank Shore under an avalanche of thundering serves and adroit groundstrokes and volleys, 6—0, 6—1. Jacobs has beaten his three opponents to date, 6—0, 6—0, 6—0; 6—1, 6—0, 6—1, and it is unreliably reported that he will be hailed before the Sherman antitrust committee this morning.

Yesterday was a generally good day for the seeded players, Elmer Rudy and Fred Roll, seeded players from Baltimore and Philadelphia, respectively, stroked their separate ways into the round of eight. Rudy beat Harris Hull and Phil Degnan, local boys, Hull at 6—1, 6—1, and Degnan two games worse. Anthony Latona trimmed Hy Ritzenberg, 6—2, 9—7, to complete the quarter-final round. That round is composed of Jacobs, Yeomans, Roll, Rudy, Mitchell, O'Neill, Mangan and Latona.

Mangan is Extended by Welsh.

Mangan was not among the favorites who advanced without effort. Barney Welsh, after yielding the first set at 6—4 made more than a fight of the second before succumbing to some abject steadiness on the part of the veteran, 10—8. Welsh's peppering chops and his occasional lambasting drives just failed to puncture the armament of the good ship Mangan, who rode out the gale with little loss of prestige.

Today sees the continuation of men's doubles and women's singles, both of which events joined the tournament parade yesterday. Today's play, however, will be dominated by three quarter-final round singles matches, one of which will bring together Jacobs and Latona, another of which will cause Messrs. Yeomans and Rudy to tangle, and the other third of which will see Dooly Mitchell and Maurice O'Neill swapping a mixture of strokes and repartee.

Good Matches Develop in Women's Class.

The women's singles developed several good matches, chief of which was the 6—4, 14—12 victory of Margaret Graham over Betty Cochran. The match between Clara Tabler and Peggy Keyser, which the former won, 6—2, 6—2, was no small shakes either. Frances Walker, who is the defending champion, won over Florence Joyce handily, while Ruth Lynn, Richmond girl, was generally too good for Peggy Caldwell.

MEN'S SINGLES.

Second round—Elmer Rudy defeated Harris Hull, 6—1, 6—1.
Third round—Jacobs defeated Shore, 6—0, 6—0; Latona defeated Ritzenberg; Mangan defeated Yeomans, 6—4, 6—3; Roll defeated Staubly, 6—4, 6—3; Rudy defeated Degnan, 6—0, 6—0.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

First round—Deck and Seidel defeated Burwell and Love, 7—5, 7—5; Mitchell and Buchanan were tied, 6—6, with Hunt and Mason; Trigg and Haney were defeating Doyle and Hill, 6—4, 5—4; Seidel and Staubley were leading Ladd and Atwood, 4—2 (postponed on account of darkness).

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

First round—Frances Walker defeated Florence Joyce, 6—0; Doris Ferry defeated Jessie Wright, 6—4; Clara Tabler defeated Peggy Keyser, 6—2; Marion Butler defeated Amy Tabler, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3; Ruth Lynn defeated Peggy Caldwell; Dooly Mitchell Levy won from Mary Ryan by default; Elisabeth Rohner won from Edith McKelvey by default.

Second round—Clara Tabler defeated Dorothie Miller Wright, 6—3; Margaret Graham defeated Betty Cochran, 6—4, 14—12.

RUDIMENTS PRACTICED AT NAVY

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 15.—Both of the two-hour practice sessions for Navy football players today were devoted to extensive drills in fundamentals, coupled with offensive and defensive dummy scrimmaging during which the first crop of new plays given them yesterday by Head Coach "Rip" Miller were thoroughly rehearsed. Tonight the stage was all set for the first regular scrimmaging, which Miller has promised for tomorrow. To what extent the regulars and scrubs will be permitted to mix it up depends upon weather conditions.

In spite of the prolonged heat spell, all of the players appear to be developing fast under the instruction of Miller and his Notre Dame and Navy assistants, and it is generally remarked by close observers that the Middies are showing greater enthusiasm in their efforts than ever before. All of which bespeaks the eagerness they are showing to learn the Notre Dame style of play.

Within a few days Miller expects to segregate his varsity and Squad B groups, and the training table will be started. The physical condition of the men also is far above normal for this stage of the preliminary campaign. In all, there is every prospect that Miller will have a formidable and speedy aggregation to trot onto Thompson Field for the opening battle of the season with William and Mary College on October 3.

In today's sessions, the squad was subdivided into three groups. Two sets of linemen performed under the watchful supervision of Miller and Ensign "Plug" Hughes, star Navy center in 1930, while Johnny "One Play" O'Brien, former Notre Dame ace, looked after the end men. In another part of the field, Christy Flanagan, Irish back field ace, who almost single handed beat Navy in Baltimore a few years ago, drilled the large contingent of back field men.

CAPONE PINS FAITH TO "INSANITY MIKE"

Gangster's Attorney Counted Among Most Resourceful Criminal Lawyers.

Chicago, Sept. 15 (U.P.).—The Chicago underworld is betting that "Insanity Mike" Ahern will save Al Capone from a long penitentiary term when "the world's worst criminal" goes on trial some three weeks hence.

Ahern is one of the most resourceful lawyers the criminal courts of this city ever have known. It was he who was credited with perfecting the insanity plea as a strategem for rescuing murderers from the electric chair.

Capone goes to trial October 6 on charges of defrauding the Government of $215,000 in income taxes. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson will rule simultaneously whether Capone must stand trial also on 5,000 separate beer charges.

New Tricks Expected.

The tall, slim Ahern, with the blue-black hair and the smile that reminds one of an open-hearted guileless schoolboy will do all the arguing in court with District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, and if Ahern doesn't display some new legal tricks, doesn't obtain for a client a light sentence, then Capone's henchmen are going to be disappointed.

Ahern is a criminal attorney so typical he looks as though he might have stepped off the talking screen of the latest gangster movie. He was born 43 years ago in the tough Bridgeport avenue iron working settlement, back of Chicago's stock yards. Alternately he went to school and drove a truck until he finally became a lawyer. For a time he was an instructor in a legal school. And then he popped into the front pages of the newspapers and won his nickname of "Insanity Mike."

He found an ancient Illinois law which said a jury could find a murderer insane. Ahern tested the law on Scalise and Anselmi, who shot down a pair of patrolmen in cold blood in 1925.

Reputation Was Made.

The jury found them insane, Ahern congratulated himself, and Scalise and Anselmi strolled from court, free men, thanks to the devious workings of the law. Both were taken for an underworld "one-way ride" a few months later, but Ahern's reputation was made. Almost every gangster who got entangled in the courts tried to retain Ahern.

Then came the case of "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn and Louise Rolph, his "blonde alibi." McGurn was wanted in connection with the St. Valentine's day massacre. He proved that he was in a room at the Stevens Hotel with Miss Rolph, while seven men were being slaughtered in a North Clark street garage. "Aha," said prosecutors, "Machine Gun Jack and his blonde alibi aren't married; we'll prosecute 'em on morals charges."

McGurn hired Ahern, who told a jury:

"They say they're married. You prove they're not."

Prosecutors couldn't prove they weren't married; Machine Gun Jack and the beautiful Miss Rolph were freed. They later were sentenced on Mann act charges, but Ahern's reputation as a "springer" wasn't dimmed.

Capone Is Confident.

Capone, meanwhile, had been having his own troubles in the courts. He fired his staff of high-priced legal talent and hired Ahern alone. And Ahern apparently has been keeping Capone out of the penitentiary these many months.

"Scarface Al" pleaded guilty in July, for instance, to both income tax and beer charges. The wily Ahern's assistant got into an argument with the judge. The judge denounced alleged "deals" between Capone and the prosecutor and continued the case. Capone changed his plea to not guilty on the income tax charge. That necessitated further delay. The trial was supposed to have come up again on September 8. It was postponed once more when Ahern demanded that the beer charges be quashed. That will be fought out in court October 8.

And when the trial finally starts, it may drag out a year, or even two, if Ahern's success in tying procedure in legal knots continues. Capone is so confident of Ahern's ability that he now appears at baseball games, theaters and horse races, gets his pictures in the newspapers and takes life casually, like a big business man on a lengthy vacation.

Special Seating Provided Donors to Regatta Fund

Special seating accommodations in the reviewing stand will be accorded to those who subscribe to the President's Cup Regatta, which will be held Friday and Saturday, the finance committee announced yesterday. J. A. Councilor is chairman of the committee.

Jack Downs, member of the general regatta committee, said that the expense fund was about $1,000 short of the $4,050 quota. The event will be held on the Eastern Branch of the Potomac River.

Truck Breaks Leg of Small Boy.

David Bell, 4, suffered a possible fracture of the right leg yesterday morning when run over by a truck in an alley behind his home at 36 V street northwest. He was taken to Sibley Hospital. John L. Reidy, 1203½ C street northeast, was driving the truck, police reported.

Cod Liver Oil Use Urged.

In a national radio talk yesterday Dr. Ellis Oppenheimer, of the U. S. Children's Bureau, urged parents and relief workers to give cod liver oil to babies and young children this winter, to offset the dangers of rickets.

H. F. POWERS LINKED WITH BAKER MURDER

Clarksburg Bluebeard Was Connected With Slaying, Florida Convict Writes.

A letter to the chief of police of Clarksburg, W. Va., purported to be from a Florida State convict, in which he offers to prove that Harry F. Powers, murderer of five in Clarksburg, W. Va., was connected with the murder of Mary Baker, is under investigation by local police.

In the files of the Mary Baker murder investigation at headquarters there is nothing to indicate that Powers was implicated in the case. However, Inspector Frank S. W. Burke said he would investigate any information the convict has to offer. The letter, written over the signature of a William M. McCluskey, reads in part:

"I feel it is my duty to write you in regard to Harry F. Powers, as I understand you are holding him on a murder charge. I have known Powers for about ten years and can give you a lot of information in regards to his past life, which I know will help the State to bring about a conviction. I can prove that he was connected with the Baker murder in Washington, D. C., which has never been cleared up, so if you care to have me investigate for the State, I will gladly do so.

"I am at present in confinement here in Florida and will be released in a few months. So if you will kindly send some one here to see me, I will gladly give information that will be of great importance to the State.

"I am a native of Virginia. I have letters in my possession to prove lots in regards to his past life and also about the matrimonial. I feel sure that I can help the State of West Virginia in clearing up this matter, and bring light on the Baker murder case that took place in Washington, with which Powers was connected."

Mary Baker was murdered on April 11, 1930. Her body was found the following day in a culvert near Arlington National Cemetery.

The letter was mailed from the State Farm at Raiford, Fla.

District Contracts Awarded.

Two contracts were awarded yesterday by the District Commissioners. W. A. Pate was given a contract to construct a storm-water sewer in Tuckerman street and Luzon avenue for $13,247.91. Roy D. ARREST BY COUNTY POLICEMEN PROBED

Rift Between Prince Georges Sheriff and Force Seen; Pair Held Injured.

Another rift between the Prince Georges County sheriff and the county police force appeared yesterday when Sheriff W. C. Hopkins announced that he would investigate the imprisonment of two men who were arrested after an auto accident Saturday night.

The two men are William Van Nay and Edward Larsinger, both of Oxon Hill, Md. They were arrested by Washington police and turned over to the county force, who placed them in the Bladensburg jail. Van Nay posted bond of $1,000 for reckless driving and driving while drunk, while Larsinger was held as witness. The two were taken into custody after an accident on the Southern Maryland pike which resulted in serious injury to Martin Pinkerton.

According to the sheriff, Larsinger was jailed while suffering from three fractured ribs, while Van Nay was also injured. The sheriff said that the accident occurred near Mechanicsville, Md., outside of Prince Georges County, and the county police therefore had no right to jail the men. He added that Larsinger, with his broken bones, was forced to sleep on the floor of the jail from midnight Saturday until Sunday morning.

J. J. Crowley, chief of police, said that he had not finished his investigation of the incident, and that he was not sure the accident happened outside of Prince Georges County. He also said that the warrants against the men were sworn out on information given by Pinkerton, and that the policemen understood the crash to have happened in Oxon Hill, in the county. The jailer who held the men said that their injuries had been treated in Washington before they were brought to the jail.

Woman Slashes Self While Sewing.

Mrs. Marion Nichols, 28, was in George Washington University Hospital last night in undetermined condition, her left wrist slashed accidentally when the razor blade she was using while sewing slipped. The accident occurred in her home at 720 Thirteenth street northwest.

Window Sash Wounds Arm.

Eight stitches were required to close the wound received by Jack Jackson when a window sash fell on his arm at the East Washington Garage in Capitol Heights. He was brought to George Washington Hospital for treatment.

WOMAN IS SOUGHT IN MORROW DEATH

Witness Says Associate of Policeman Was Known Only as "Sugar."

Police last night were seeking a woman known only as "Sugar" in connection with the death of Policeman Raymond M. Morrow, whose body, with arms peacefully folded across his chest, was found Saturday beneath the Sixteenth street bridge over Piney Branch.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury which opened an inquest into the mysterious death yesterday morning, adjourned until 11:30 today, after making a tour of inspection of the ravine, and taking testimony of a score of witnesses.

Entrance of the woman, "Sugar," into the case developed at yesterday's inquest, when Hainer Hinshaw, 1121 Seventeenth street northwest, vice president of American Airways, testified that Morrow brought her to Hinshaw's apartment Friday night at 11:30.

Woman Was in Car.

She was described as dark-haired, about 30, and was driving a pea green sedan when she called for Morrow at Hinshaw's apartment, the witness said.

Hinshaw testified that Morrow had often visited him. He said he was "somewhat intoxicated," complained of the heat when he came to the apartment Friday night, and asked permission to take a shower bath.

Morrow told Hinshaw to call him when he heard an automobile horn blow three times, the witness said. Later, however, when he heard the horn and looked out of the window he saw the policeman several doors down the street, he testified.

"I called him," he said, "and he walked across the street to a parked car. There was a woman at the wheel."

Came to Apartment.

Hinshaw said that the two later came to his apartment, but stayed only long enough to pocket a quart bottle of gin the policeman had left there.

"I had never seen the woman before, but I heard Morrow continually refer to her as 'Sugar,'" the witness said.

Nearly a score of witnesses testified before the hearing was adjourned, one declaring she had heard Morrow assert on Friday that "he never intended to go home any more."

The adjournment was taken because Mrs. Morrow was not able to attend yesterday's inquest. She will take the witness stand this morning, as will Headquarters Detectives Springman and Darnell, and Deputy Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

FIRE LOSS HERE SET AT $2.11 PER CAPITA

Total Mounts During Year to Reach $1,029,931; Report Covers 4,331 Blazes.

Washington's fire loss in the last fiscal year was estimated at $2.11 per capita by Fire Chief George S. Watson in his annual report submitted to the District Commissioners yesterday.

The total loss for the year was $1,029,931, which was an increase of $141,301 over the year before, Chief Watson reported. The average loss per fire was $237.78, which was a decrease of $15.68 from the year before.

There were 4,331 fires in the course of the year. This was 829 more than the year before, or 8.8 fires per 1,000 population for the year. There were many more alarms than that, however. Of the 5,393 alarms received from within the District, 525 were false alarms. In 46 instances District apparatus responded to calls for help from outside the District.

Though the fire loss last year increased over that in the year before, Chief Watson told the Commissioners that "both the loss per fire and the loss per capita are low, according to standards established by fire control authorities."

The benefits of the new salary law, enacted last year, Chief Watson said, "were of far-reaching importance in the maintenance of morale in the department and operated as an incentive for men of high qualifications to seek employment in the service."

Fraternity to Pin Badge Upon Gown

Garment Once Worn by Wife of Nineteenth U. S. President.

Officers of the Kappa Kappa Gamma Fraternity at 11 o'clock this morning will pin their fraternal badge on the gown of Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes, wife of the nineteenth president of the United States and the first mistress of the White House to be a college graduate and a member of a women's fraternity.

The gown is part of the Rose Gouverneur Hoes collection at the National Museum. Mrs. George Minier Hostetler, a national officer of the organization, will pin the golden key. The ceremony was arranged by Mrs. Thomas Lunsford Stokes, jr., president of the Washington Alumnae Association, in conjunction with Dr. Alexander Wetmore, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

The badge is an old one, of the style worn by Mrs. Hayes, and bears the date, October 11, 1876. Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Helen Wills Moody, Dean Gildersleeve, of Barnard; Dorothy Canfield Fisher and Alice Duer Miller, are members of the Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Boy, 13, Member of Secret 'Gang,' Is Shot at Hangout

"The Three Skulls," a boys' secret society formed on dime novel lines, claimed its first victim yesterday when John Manthos, 13 years old, one of its members, was accidentally shot in the stomach at the "gang" headquarters, 326 John Marshall place northwest.

In the room where the boy was shot police found four pistols, two dirks, two ounces of spirits of nitroglycerin, three crude, home-made holsters and a quantity of ammunition. A number of books were found to have holes gouged in their leaves between the covers. Police believe the weapons were to be hidden here.

According to police, the Manthos boy was shot by Joseph Caporaletti, 14 years old. This youth and two others who were in the room at the time were taken to the receiving home. The injured boy was taken to Emergency Hospital, where his injuries were undetermined.

According to Caporaletti, he had gone to the Manthos rooms on the fourth floor of the house on John Marshall place to fix a gun. He was oiling and cleaning it, he said, when it went off, the bullet striking young Manthos in the side of his waist.

The boy's mother, Antonia Manthos, was in another room on the same floor when her son was shot. As he was carried out of the house on a stretcher, she said, "Good luck, John."

Still conscious, but covered with a sheet, he answered feebly, "Thanks, but I'll probably be croaked anyway."

The other boys in the room at the time were Quido Antonio, 14 years old, of E street northwest, and John's brother, Mike, 15 years old. They, with Caporaletti, will be held without specific charge awaiting outcome of the wounded youth's injuries.

Caporaletti said he knew the revolver was loaded while he was working on it. It held five shots, he said, but only one was fired. After the shooting he ran into the street with the other boys to call for help.

As the boys were being taken to the patrol wagon by policemen, the mother screamed at young Mike, "You've killed your brother, bringing those other boys here." He said nothing.

The children said they found the guns in vacant houses in the neighborhood. The three revolvers were all .22-caliber, while the fourth weapon, an automatic pistol, was .25-caliber. The nitroglycerin they obtained at the docks, where one of the boys works, they said. It is not the explosive usually given this name, but a medicine used for dogs.

The father of the injured boy and his seven brothers and sisters is "Nick" Manthos. His house, where the shooting occurred, is just around the corner from police headquarters, and in the same block. He was in the press room at police headquarters, talking to reporters, when the phone rang to tell him his son had been shot.

Police were incredulous as the search of the fourth-floor rooms disclosed the extensive armory. In bureau drawers, under furniture and behind books, they found guns and knives. The discovery of the nitroglycerin sent reporters scurrying until its harmless nature was ascertained. Through the crowds of searching policemen the children wandered, explaining where they had obtained the weapons. A sheet of leather, they said, was to be used to make holsters. Eight baseball bats were found in a corner. They had been given to them, the boys said.

$100,000 SUIT FILED FOR INJURY TO BOY

Youth Has Partial Paralysis From Accident Charged to Reckless Driving.

One of the largest suits ever instituted here with the "family car" doctrine recently laid down by the District Court of Appeals as the basis, was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by David Reid Middleton, a legal infant, through his mother, David Ella Middleton, of 1904 Jackson street northeast. The suit seeks $100,000 damages.

The District of Columbia and Earle B. Hull, of 1845 Monroe street northeast, were named defendants. Mrs. Middleton charges that on March 5, 1930, her son was invited to take a ride by Daniel Hull, son of Earle B. Hull. While the car was being operated by young Hull at Eighteenth and Lawrence streets northeast, it struck a depression "10 to 12 feet" in depth. The charge is made that the District failed to repair the depression.

Young Hull, according to the complaint, operated the car in a "reckless manner" so that it went into the depression. His youthful companion was thrown violently to the top of the car and as a result has suffered permanent paralysis of the right side of his body, his speech and eyesight have been impaired, and his skull fractured. Numerous other hurts are set forth. Attorneys Albert W. Jacobson and Chauncey Brown appeared for Mrs. Middleton.

The "family car" ruling states that the auto owner shall be responsible for damages incurred by any one to whom he has given permission to use the vehicle.

Leaper From Key Bridge Is Mending in Hospital

Boyd Weber, 40, of Clarendon, Va., who tried to commit suicide late Monday afternoon by jumping off the Key Bridge, was resting comfortably at Gallinger Hospital last night, according to reports from the institution.

Weber struck the water on his back, severely spraining it, thought better of his suicidal intents and swam ashore, where he clung to the end of a pier until four members of the Potomac Boat Club rushed to the spot and pulled him out. He was taken to Emergency Hospital, where he was said to have a sprained back, and later transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

When Governments Totter . . .

Honest News Reports are INVALUABLE

SOLDIERS revolt against their superiors, riotous mobs pillage and destroy, constituted authority is challenged—another government falls.

Reporting the news of turbulent national crises is an acid test of a press association's efficiency. Rumors fly thick and fast, facts are difficult to verify. Partisans of conflicting interests strive vigorously to influence news dispatches for their own benefit.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS correspondents are respected and welcomed in the capitals of the world because statesmen and officials are familiar with the high standards of the organization they represent. These reporters' sole task is to report the news—facts untarnished by bias or propaganda—and accord fair and impartial treatment to the conflicting parties to a dispute.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS staff, at home and abroad, serves no interests of business, politics or religion. It gives the readers of member newspapers the facts of daily happenings around the globe.
